SECOND FLEET FOR ATLANTIC NOW PROPOSED

Senators Discuss Wisdom of Doubling Army to Total of 750,000 Men.

Heavily Armored Ships With 11-Inch Guns Predicted For Eastern Defense.

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON —(U P)— President Roosevelt today signed the Vinson bill authorizing an 11 per cent increase of the United States navy by adding 22 new aircraft carriers, cruisers and submarines and an equal number of auxiliary naval vessels.

WASHINGTON — (AP) — A new $1,200,000,000 expansion of the navy to provide for 84 additional warships was proposed in an administration-approved bill today by Chairman Vinson (D., Ga.) of the house naval committee.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON— An early administration proposal for building a separate Atlantic fleet was forecast in congressional quarters today, while senators discussed the wisdom of doubling the army to total 750,000 men.

Inasmuch as the main fleet is being kept in the Pacific, well-informed sources explained that talk of developing Atlantic defenses arose from the possibility of Allied defeat in the European war.

The basis of a second fleet, these sources said, would be a new type of fast cruiser of 20,000 to 28,000 tons. Rep. Maas (R-Minn) predicted that it would be heavily-armored, with 11-inch guns, and would be designed especially to withstand aerial bombing.

Rear Admiral Ernest J. King said in a radio speech last night that a two-ocean navy might be a future requirement for the United States.

"For the present, however," he counselled, "we must concentrate on building up the navy now authorized. When we get along with that building we can consider the advisability of a two-ocean navy." Congress has authorized a broad expansion of the fleet.

As for the army, the suggestion for increasing it to 750,000 men was voiced by Senator Lodge (R-Mass). A measure now before congress would place the authorized strength at 375,000, and Lodge explained that he had not yet decided whether to press his larger figure immediately.

"It has become apparent," he

Hitler Adds Another Victory to Blitzkrieg Total

With France capitulating to the German war machine within 48 days from the time Adolf Hitler moved into the low countries, the German fuehrer added another military triumph to the list he began to compile when he "anschlussed" Austria without the firing of a single shot. In addition to the nations whose fall is depicted above, he now also controls Norway, Holland and Belgium. Only Britain remains to fight the powerful Nazis, and the British have announced they will fight "to the end."

Reds Move Swiftly Into Baltic States

Russia Adds Estonia And Latvia to Conquest of Lithuania; Berlin Doesn't 'Welcome' Situation

(By Associated Press)

MOSCOW—Soviet Russian troops marched into unresisting Estonia and Latvia today, climaxing a series of swift moves which consolidated Russia's position in the Baltic.

News that the Red army was on the march was disclosed by the Russian radio only a few hours after the two countries had yielded to Soviet demands that they permit unimpeded passage of troops and reorganize their governments.

Lithuania capitulated to similar demands Saturday, and Russian troops already are occupying strategic points there

Tass, official news agency, announced the agreement of Estonia and Latvia to the Russian demands which, Tass said, were motivated by a need for "honest and conscientious observance" of mutual assistance pacts with the two Baltic states.

The Soviet asked new governments "capable and willing to ensure honest implementation" of the pacts; and free passage of troops to "forestall possible provocational actions against Soviet garrisons" installed in Estonia and Latvia under the pacts signed last fall.

(Estonia has an area of about 18,350 square miles and approximately one and one-quarter million inhabitants; Latvia has an

2 BUCYRUS MEN DROWN IN RIVER

One Victim of Sunday Mishap Near Fremont Was Father of Five Children.

BUCYRUS — Robert Etzinger, 30, father of five children, and Paul Edward Tallman, 29, both of Bucyrus, were drowned yesterday in the Sandusky river, seven miles north of Fremont, when the outboard motor boat which they were testing capsized in 30-feet of water.

Earl Tallman, younger brother of Paul, was also in the boat, but managed to cling to its side until help arrived.

Etzinger, a native of Bucyrus, had been unable to swim since injuring both legs in an auto race accident at the Bucyrus fairground several years ago.

Etzinger is survived by his wife, Florence; five children, William, Barbara, Mary, Robert and Joan at home, and two half-brothers, Carl and Harold of Bucyrus. He was a member of St. Paul's Lutheran church.

Funeral services will be held at the Henderson and Lutz funeral home at 2:30 p. m. Tuesday in charge of Rev. David Mumford. Burial will be in Oakwood cemetery.

Tallman is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Tallman; a brother Earl and a sister, Mrs. Gertrude McDougal all of Bucyrus.

Democrat Would Vote Split If Married Women Fired.

COLUMBUS — (INS) — Rep Pat Dunn (D), of Tuscarawas county, today said he would vote for the proposal to split the state and national ballots provided Governor Bricker would fire all the married women now working for the state.

Dunn has frequently sponsored legislation which would limit state employment to men and single women.

Mansfield Pilot Training Under CAA Sharply Boosted

Civilian pilot training at Mansfield airport is to be more than doubled and perhaps tripled.

Word to this effect was received yesterday by James R. Harrington, airport manager and CAA inspector, from Charles E. Cox, Chicago, who is in charge of CAA flying development for this area.

With 10 students now undergoing flying training at the airport—nine men and a girl—at least 15 more students will be enrolled, and the number may run as high as 30, Cox told Harrington.

The increase follows the adoption of a plan by the CAA to intensify its effort to develop civilian fliers. CAA Chairman Robert Hinckley announced in Washington yesterday a plan that would permit 30,000 students to complete training courses by the end of the year.

Details of how the additional students would be enrolled were not discussed by Cox, according to Harrington

The additional students will start their training about July 1, but methods of selections have not been decided on.

Petain Announces End of Battle In Radio Broadcast

Sir Nevile Henderson Warns England 'German Invasion May be Expected This Month or July;' Blockade Plan Seriously Hit by Loss of French Fleet; Red Armies Take Estonia And Latvia

BULLETIN

BERLIN—(AP)—Adolf Hitler and his axis partner, Premier Mussolini of Italy, will meet tomorrow to decide on what peace terms France can have. (In Rome it was said the meeting probably would be held at Munich.)

BULLETIN

LES VERIERS, Switzerland (At the French Border) — (AP) — Two hours after Premier-Marshal Petain"s broadcast announcement that he had asked the Germans for peace, a fierce battle began today on the plain behind Pontarlier, where large numbers of German motorized units found their path to the south blocked by French infantry.

(By Associated Press)

France asked Germany for an armistice today—the ninth nation to succumb to Hitler's armies in two years—as 84-year-old Marshal Petain, new French premier and World war "hero of Verdun," declared:

"It is necessary to try to end the fighting."

Petain announced France's readiness to lay down her arms in a broadcast from Bordeaux.

"I made contact with the adversary last night, asking him as soldier to soldier to seek with me the means to stop the fight," he said.

Even without knowledge of whether the powerful French fleet, second biggest in Europe, would be involved in the projected French surrender, Britain voiced a grim determination to "fight on to the end."

England was told by Sir Nevile Henderson, the last British ambassador to Berlin, that a German invasion may now be expected "this month or July."

Authorized Nazis in Berlin said bluntly:

"No separate armistice with France is imaginable, except in terms of complete capitulation."

The Berlin radio broadcast an official announcement that Marshal Petain "has proclaimed France's capitulation."

It said Hitler would meet Premier Mussolini of Italy shortly to discuss the situation.

Two hours before Petain spoke, an official French army communique said fighting was continuing.

BRITISH KEEP ON FIGHTING

Empire Continues War Against Nazis 'Until Last' Says Official News Service.

WASHINGTON —(AP)— The United States acted today to facilitate the delivery of war planes to the Allies by authorizing the ships to be flown across American borders.

"It is learned that the statement issued last night that Great Britain is firmly and resolutely determined to continue the struggle until victory has been won still expresses the opinion of the British government.

Loss of the French fleet would mean a serious blow to Britain's hopes of ultimately forcing Germany to her knees through blockade.

Two other small nations in the Baltic area, in the north, felt the tread of invaders' boots as Russia's Red armies marched into Estonia and Latvia early today in accordance with Moscow's week-end demands, which were accepted by the little Baltic states. Russian troops occupied Lithuania Saturday.

The Soviet move was apparently two-fold:

1. To halt any possible German thrust into the Baltic.
2. To improve Russia's strategic position for possible offensive operations.

QUESTION: Disposition Of French Fleet Vital To Britain

(United Press War Expert)

French cessation of hostilities has caused the war against Germany and Italy to revert to its original strategy of a starvation sea blockade as the only way of possible victory. At the outset of hostilities the Allies had no expectation of winning the war on land, and were not prepared for open field fighting.

They counted on the strangulation efforts of the British and the French and the Maginot line. What disposition now will be made of the French navy must have an influence on the future course of events.

Should France surrender her warships to the Germans, the power of the blockade continued by the British navy alone will be weakened, though not necessarily to a fatal extent.

The primary weakness will consist of the long French Atlantic coastline, offering new ports of entry for goods for Germany, which will have to be added to the present limited North sea blockade area. The British, however, could overcome that defect to some extent by increasing the number

DAVEY STARTS ATTACK UPON BALLOT SPLIT

Welcomes Chance to Oppose Bricker on Separate Campaign.

(By United Press)

COLUMBUS — A special session of the Ohio legislature, convening tonight, was expected to be the signal for start of political campaign hostilities between Gov. John W. Bricker, Republican, and former Gov. Martin L. Davey, Democrat, who will contest for executive office next November.

Although the Republican administration appeared safely in control of both legislative branches, Davey's minority Democratic supporters were ready to train their oratorical fire on the ballot separation issue — one of the chief reasons for the special session.

Bricker, in his call for the session last week, asked the assembly to split the state and national tickets at the November polls. Republicans admit their fear that the mere presence on the ballot of President Roosevelt, running for a third term, would lend strength to Davey.

Davey, in a formal statement, said: "I welcome the fact that Mr. Bricker is afraid to be on the ticket with the Republican candidate for president and wants to stick out his chin, all by itself, on a separate ballot.

"This will be a glorious chance to get him away from the big tent, and tear off his mask of hypocrisy and deceit and to show up before the people of Ohio this most selfish and heartless pretender. We now can have a really interesting campaign."

Gov. Bricker will deliver in person a message to a joint session of the senate and house at 7:30 p. m. He will urge appropriations of additional funds for old age pensions and poor relief as well as the ballot separation.

Commanding overwhelming two-thirds majorities in each house, the Republicans will drive toward a quick completion of the business at hand. They hope to clean up the ballot, pension and relief issues by Friday and Saturday, in advance of the national Republican convention which opens next Monday at Philadelphia.

Davey asserted that Bricker "is serving official notice to the whole country that Ohio is hopelessly lost to the Republican candidate for president."

Assailing Bricker's record, Davey said:

"Gov. Bricker now proposes to appropriate money for relief — eight or nine months after thousands of people in Ohio were hungry and in dire distress . . .

"And what a friend Mr. Bricker would be to the old age pensioners at this late date! x x x He proposes to appropriate one million dollars for old age pensions. This isn't enough to make a good start."

Farm Officials Attend Regional Institute Here

Nearly 150 farm organization officials and vocational teachers from 11 northcentral Ohio counties were in Mansfield today for opening sessions of a three-day regional Institute of Rural Affairs at the Central Methodist church.

Principal speaker at today's lecture session was V. R. Wertz, extension economist at Ohio State university, whose topic was "Economics and Social Backgrounds."

Forum sessions were on the schedule for the day with farm leaders heading discussions on modern social and economic problems in rural communities.

The speaker Tuesday will be Karl Brandt, of Leland Stanford university food research institute, who will talk on "A Permanent Agricultural Policy for the Future."

Sponsored by the U. S. department of agriculture, the institute is in charge of a six-member committee headed by County Agent George B. Ganyard.

The conference is one of eight scheduled for Ohio this year. Ganyard said the purpose of the meetings is to "provide an opportunity for the study of the basic principles underlying the development of a sound rural program."

Up and Down THE STREET

Sheriff E. P. Long usually has an answer for most of the complaints that come to his office, but he got one today that stumped him. A young man, just out of college, came in this morning to ask the sheriff how to get a job. "I've looked just about every place, and I figured you would know as much about where to apply as anybody," the troubled young man said. Long told the youth that finding jobs for people was a little out of his jurisdiction and he regretted that he couldn't help.

Eldon Dice, Mansfield Braves centerfielder, literally "ran out of his shoes" during the first game of a doubleheader against Fostoria at the Fairground yesterday. Dice hit a lusty triple to left field and started flying around the base paths. He streaked over second and halfway between second and third his right shoe flew off. He reached third safely, but the umpires had to call time to allow a teammate to recover the shoe and give Dice time to put it back on.

A swarm of bees that moved in on County Commissioner Guy Stewart at his home in Lucas confronted him today with a problem that makes some of his difficulties as commissioner seem small. The bees chose a space between the siding of the house and the plaster as their new home, and some of them filtered through into the house to make matters worse. Stewart thinks his wife was justified in asking him to "do something about the bees," but he's wondering what to do.

SPIRITED RACE FOR CHAIRMAN OF GROUP SEEN

Party's War Stand Offers Knottiest Problem Among Planks.

(By International News Service)

PHILADELPHIA — A week ahead of regular convention sessions, the Republican resolutions committee convened today to speed its all-important task of drafting the GOP platform for the coming campaign.

First order of business was election of a chairman for the 50-man group—and over this a spirited contest appeared likely with several committee factions boosting different candidates.

Prominently mentioned as possible chairmen were former Senator George Wharton Pepper, Philadelphia attorney; New England's candidates, Sen. Henry Cabot Lodge of Massachusetts, and Henry P. Fletcher of Rhode Island, former GOP national chairman and two members supported by the far westerners—former Governor Alf Landon of Kansas, the GOP's 1936 standard bearer, and Sen. John Thomas of Idaho.

Since the chairman of the powerful resolutions committee will have a strong voice in the formulation of party principles, insiders viewed his selection as of extreme importance.

Thomas, who succeeded Borah in the United States senate and has carried on his non-intervention stand, had some support from those who wish the Republicans to adopt a vigorous anti-war plank.

Later in the week, the committee holds hearings on various proposed planks with drafting of a stand on the war situation looming as the most important as well as the knottiest problem.

In Washington Rep. Hamilton Fish, (R) N. Y., disclosed that he will appear on behalf of other isolationist congressmen to urge the party to go on record "that this country will not go to war unless it is invaded or the Monroe Doctrine is violated."

Fish said he also would ask the committee to recommend a strong "anti-fifth column" plank which would specifically urge outlawing the Communist party, deportation of "alien agitators," and registration of all aliens.

Meanwhile Philadelphia already had the aspect of a convention city, with many delegates here, the vanguard of supporters of the various presidential hopefuls established in hotel headquarters, and campaign banners prominently displayed.

The Voice of BROADWAY

—By DOROTHY KILGALLEN

Speaking for Myself.

My observation of the Broadway scene and the celebrities who walk through it have forced me of late into the conclusion that in instances of Glamor vs. Talent the public storms after the Glamor, and that if you happen to have both, it is practically impossible to avoid living a life full of inconveniences and embarrassment.

I am thinking at the moment of Joan Crawford, who always seems to magnetize an unprecedented number of autograph hounds wherever she goes—so many that I am sure every child in New York must have several copies of her signature.

I saw Joan with Helen Hayes the other evening at a performance of the Vivien Leigh-Laurence Olivier "Romeo and Juliet," and her presence, quiet as it was, caused such a stampede in the audience that she must have been annoyed for her own sake, and humiliated by the disturbance to the actors performing on the stage.

Not even the worst critic of the behavior of film stars in public could have blamed Joan for the uproar. She was not there showing off at a premiere; she attended one of the last nights of the run. No press agent had announced her coming, and she did nothing to call attention to herself except wear her own face, which I suppose was unavoidable.

Yet between the acts, she was hemmed in by literally hundreds of bad-mannered fans, who leaned all over the First Lady of the Theater to get Joan's signature, blocked the aisles, and inconvenienced half the audience.

In the end of the play, they did not wait for Juliet to die before they had raced down the aisles to where the actresses were sitting, rattling programs and gabbing noisily while the poor performers on the stage struggled to make themselves heard by that portion of the audience which had paid money to hear the play.

It was at this time that Joan arose and left the theater, preferring to miss the end of the play rather than cause a mob scene.

I don't know what the remedy for this is; I am just suggesting that it seems a very irksome penalty to impose upon a star, to make it impossible for her to enjoy an evening at the theater without wrecking the performances of her friends on the other side of the footlights.

Nothing would induce me to join the gallery in a golf match. It strikes me as being very tiring, and awfully oh-hummy. . . . I loved "Ladies in Retirement"—I like even bad horror plays, but this one was slick as well as shivery.

Insects are my pet aversion in the animal kingdom—they are one of the reasons why I prefer a nice clean night club to a country lane.

I just watched the launching of a new battleship—a beautiful sleek, long thing, gray, brick red, and black. I'd rather have a waterfront view than any other from my window.

I saw "The Phantom of the Opera" last week at a Sixth Avenue theater that shows nothing but old flickers, and when I say flicker I mean they really do. But such fun to watch, and the management doesn't seem to care if you talk back to the actors.

I love onion sandwiches, steak with onions, and onion soup, but a plain undressed onion in a dish frightens me.

Among the least photogenic figures in public life are Sinclair Lewis, John L. Lewis, and Mayor LaGuardia. But His Honor's pictures are always amusing, because he makes such fierce faces, and movies of John L. Lewis are intriguing if you just watch his eyebrows going up and down like elevators. Photographs of Lily Pons invariably libel her.

I think I will write a note to Postmaster General Farley and tell him I think he needs some new mail trucks. The ones I see around look awfully out of date.

Elsie Robinson, who I supposed might be called the dean of women columnists, is in town, chipper as ever. She's the most motherly reporter I ever encountered, aside from being one of the best.

I remember once she asked me: "Where are you going?" and when I replied, "I'm taking a plane to Tulsa," she said, "Well, my dear, it's very cold in those planes, I hope you'll wear woolen stockings!"

I've never ridden a surf board behind a fast boat, but sometimes, when I'm very happy, I think I know how that must feel. . . . I love the new Cafe Pierre. Very chic, very cool, very gay, and what more do you want on a hot day in June?

Hollywood Speaks---

—By ROBBIN COONS

The new "Four Sons" uses only the title of the old silent film success. Today's picture is an illumination of tragic pages from recent history—the Munich pact, the cession of the Sudetenland, the conquest of Czechoslovakia, the invasion of Poland—as that history affected one family.

The Bernles are Czechs of German blood. Their father died in the first World war. They live in the Sudetenland, just across the border from bayonet-bristling Germany. Frau Bernle has four sons. Chris (Ameche) is a loyal Czech; Karl (Curtis) has joined the Nazis, first secretly then openly; Joseph (Lowery), an artist, goes to America for a career; Fritz (Ernest) is the youngest.

Sweetheart of Chris is Anna (Hughes). First break in the family comes when Anna and Karl discover love. This is patched when big-hearted Chris forgives, and marriage ensues. But the political quarrel between the brothers, like the history that fosters it, marches on inexorably. Frau Bernle (Leontovich) is all mother, her great concern her children.

History (or you may prefer to call it Hitler) takes three of them from her, leaves her finally with a new Iron Cross and a ticket to America, where with Joseph she may hope to find peace again.

The power of "Four Sons" springs from its integrity as relentless drama, from the skill with which writer and director have pointed their climaxes, employing word and expression and an exceptionally forceful camera to artful effect. There is no maudlin straining for audience tears. Leontovich makes a screen debut which places her among the stars. Only rarely does her long stage training betray itself in touches of theatricalism. Mary Beth Hughes makes a bid for recognition as Hitler-happy Anna.

"Susan and God." Screen-play by Anita Loos from Rachel Crothers play. Directed by George Cukor. Principals: Joan Crawford, Fredric March, Ruth Hussey, John Carroll, Rita Hayworth, Nigel Bruce, Bruce Cabot, Rose Hobart, Constance Collier, Rita Quigley, Marjorie Main.

More power to Crawford for this daring (for her) excursion into the strange field of comedy. As scatterbrained Susan, who makes a new religion her hobby and inflicts it upon her friends, but neglects to apply it to herself until almost too late, Joan is surprisingly successful. She's good, too, in the serious emotional scenes.

"Susan and God" is talky, as you would expect, and it's too long for comfort, but it is bolstered by an interesting theme and excellent acting—particularly by March as the estranged husband who finally tames Susan; by Hussey as the likeable "other woman"; by Quigley as the neglected child, and by Crawford. Miss Main reliably supplies more than her quota of laughs, which abound through the unreeling.

COLLEGE FLIGHT STUDENTS STEP UP PORT TEMPO

Harrington and Aide Take Up 31 Neophyte Pilots, Seek Another Instructor.

With several Mansfield college students home for their summer vacations enrolled the past week for flight instruction, Inspector James R. Harrington and Russell Gledhill, assistant instructor, spent a busy day at Mansfield airport yesterday, taking aloft 31 would-be pilots for training

The enrollment of six new students at the field has set a record number of 65 now taking instructions and has made Mansfield one of the largest civilian training sites in the state. The result is that Harrington is seeking another instructor and says he hopes to have the teacher on hand sometime this week.

Latest youths listed for flight training include Robert Tawse, Louis Nixon, James Wallace, LeRoy Wittemire, Bruce Scott, and Raymond Richards, Galion.

Seven airplanes are now hangared at the field. Tom Jones and Paul Gimbel went to Rural Valley, Pa., the past week and brought back the new Luscombe, two-place cabin ship purchased by the Mansfield Flying club, that Jones had been forced to set down in a hay field last week-end because of inclement weather while en route here from the factory in Trenton, N. J.

With traffic on the field at a new high and with CPT students practicing landings and take-offs a list of safety practices and field rules were posted in the hangar the past week.

They restrict students from flying solo farther than seven miles from the airport. Chucks are required under the wheels of all ships before motors are started Parked aircraft must be tailed to the wind and chucks placed under the wheels Students soloing are not allowed to fly with dual controls unless accompanied by a CAA representative. Left-hand traffic rules apply when approaching and landing aircraft, and no airplane is permitted to take-off the field when the wind velocity is greater than 20 miles an hour

Two student fliers Dean Gallagher and Theodore Myers, have given up their training at Mansfield airport. Both will entrain for Santa Monica, Calif., this week to go to work for the Douglas Aircraft corporation, one of the nation's largest manufacturers of airplanes. They expect, however, to complete their flight instruction on the west coast.

Visitors at the port yesterday included Mr and Mrs Charles Grinnell, who were flying a new Luscombe to Seattle, Wash., from the factory at Trenton, N. J. They stopped for a short rest and fuel.

Meantime, the auto continued its wild careening and finally rolled over Williams' legs as he lay helpless in the ditch. He was not seriously injured.

Special Session Seen Signal for Hot Political Scrap

DAVEY STARTS ATTACK UPON BALLOT SPLIT

Welcomes Chance to Oppose Bricker on Separate Campaign.

(By United Press)

COLUMBUS — A special session of the Ohio legislature, convening tonight, was expected to be the signal for start of political campaign hostilities between Gov. John W. Bricker, Republican, and former Gov. Martin L. Davey, Democrat, who will contest for executive office next November.

Although the Republican administration appeared safely in control of both legislative branches, Davey's minority Democratic supporters were ready to train their oratorical fire on the ballot separation issue — one of the chief reasons for the special session.

Bricker, in his call for the session last week, asked the assembly to split the state and national tickets at the November polls. Republicans admit their fear that the mere presence on the ballot of President Roosevelt, running for a third term, would lend strength to Davey.

Davey, in a formal statement, said: "I welcome the fact that Mr. Bricker is afraid to be on the ticket with the Republican candidate for president and wants to stick out his chin, all by itself, on a separate ballot.

"This will be a glorious chance to get him away from the big tent, and tear off his mask of hypocrisy and deceit and to show up before the people of Ohio this most selfish and heartless pretender. We now can have a really interesting campaign."

Gov. Bricker will deliver in person a message to a joint session of the senate and house at 7:30 p. m. He will urge appropriations of additional funds for old age pensions and poor relief as well as the ballot separation.

Commanding overwhelming two-thirds majorities in each house, the Republicans will drive toward a quick completion of the business at hand. They hope to clean up the ballot, pension and relief issues by Friday and Saturday, in advance of the national Republican convention which opens next Monday at Philadelphia.

Davey asserted that Bricker "is serving official notice to the whole country that Ohio is hopelessly lost to the Republican candidate for president."

Assailing Bricker's record, Davey said:

"Gov. Bricker now proposes to appropriate money for relief — eight or nine months after thousands of people in Ohio were hungry and in dire distress . . .

"And what a friend Mr. Bricker would be to the old age pensioners at this late date! x x x He proposes to appropriate one million dollars for old age pensions. This isn't enough to make a good start."

Farm Officials Attend Regional Institute Here

Nearly 150 farm organization officials and vocational teachers from 11 northcentral Ohio counties were in Mansfield today for opening sessions of a three-day regional Institute of Rural Affairs at the Central Methodist church.

Principal speaker at today's lecture session was V. R. Wertz, extension economist at Ohio State university, whose topic was "Economics and Social Backgrounds."

Forum sessions were on the schedule for the day with farm leaders heading discussions on modern social and economic problems in rural communities.

The speaker Tuesday will be Karl Brandt, of Leland Stanford university food research institute, who will talk on "A Permanent Agricultural Policy for the Future."

Sponsored by the U. S. department of agriculture, the institute is in charge of a six-member committee headed by County Agent George B. Ganyard.

The conference is one of eight scheduled for Ohio this year. Ganyard said the purpose of the meetings is to "provide an opportunity for the study of the basic principles underlying the development of a sound rural program."

Sheriff E. P. Long usually has an answer for most of the complaints that come to his office, but he got one today that stumped him. A young man, just out of college, came in this morning to ask the sheriff how to get a job. "I've looked just about every place, and I figured you would know as much about where to apply as anybody," the troubled young man said. Long told the youth that finding jobs for people was a little out of his jurisdiction and he regretted that he couldn't help.

Eldon Dice, Mansfield Braves centerfielder, literally "ran out of his shoes" during the first game of a doubleheader against Fostoria at the Fairground yesterday. Dice hit a lusty triple to left field and started flying around the base paths. He streaked over second and halfway between second and third his right shoe flew off. He reached third safely, but the umpires had to call time to allow a teammate to recover the shoe and give Dice time to put it back on.

A swarm of bees that moved in on County Commissioner Guy Stewart at his home in Lucas confronted him today with a problem that makes some of his difficulties as commissioner seem small. The bees chose a space between the siding of the house and the plaster as their new home, and some of them filtered through into the house to make matters worse. Stewart thinks his wife was justified in asking him to "do something about the bees," but he's wondering what to do.

SPOILS MILLION-MILE SAFE DRIVING RECORD, LOSES $500

His safe driving record for nearly 1,000,000 miles without an accident marred by arrest Saturday night on a charge of unsafe driving cost a veteran Greyhound line bus driver a $500 bonus, he told Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch in municipal court this morning.

Pleading guilty to a charge of crossing the orange center stripes on U. S. route 42, north of Mansfield, while enroute from Cleveland, Hershall Garringer, 43, of Washington C. H., was fined $10 and costs.

Garringer was one of the eight drivers arrested by state highway patrolmen over the week-end and charged with violation of the traffic code.

The veteran driver told the court he had been operating a bus for more than 10 years and that he had a "clean" safe driving record. He said that with only a few more miles he would have driven 1,000,000 miles and would have been entitled to a $500 bonus for having no accidents or traffic violations charged against his record.

Robert A Wherry, 23, of 160 West Fourth street, charged with unsafe operation of a motor vehicle, was fined $10 and costs. He pleaded guilty.

Robert M. Campbell, Dayton, forfeited a $25 bond when he failed to appear in court to answer charges of unsafe driving.

Arrested yesterday on a charge of operating an overweighted truck on U. S. route 42, Martin J. Dymek, 23, Cleveland, posted $35 for his appearance in municipal court Wednesday.

Convicted of driving his car with insufficient lights on U. S. route 42 south of Mansfield, John A. Lelle, 164 Blanche street, was fined $5 and costs by Justice of the Peace J. H. Wiles in Lexington yesterday.

As the result of a collision with a truck on U. S. route 30, west of Jeromesville Saturday, Alvin C. Fridline, 69, of Jeromesville was fined $2 and costs by Justice of the Peace Ernest Hopkins, for failing to observe a stop sign.

Clarence L. Pfister, 25, of 555 West Third street, was fined $2 and cost by Mayor W. M. King of Galion permitting an unlicensed driver to operate his automobile.

Charged with operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of alcohol, Arthur L. Brown, Shelby, will be arraigned before Mayor W. M. Morris of Shelby tonight. Patrolmen said they arrested him early Sunday morning in Shelby.

Arrested June 1 for failure to observe a stop sign, Mrs. Louise Farley, Crestline, was fined $2 and costs by Mayor King at Galion Saturday night.

SPIRITED RACE FOR CHAIRMAN OF GROUP SEEN

Party's War Stand Offers Knottiest Problem Among Planks.

(By International News Service)

PHILADELPHIA — A week ahead of regular convention sessions, the Republican resolutions committee convened today to speed its all-important task of drafting the GOP platform for the coming campaign.

First order of business was election of a chairman for the 50-man group—and over this a spirited contest appeared likely with several committee factions boosting different candidates.

Prominently mentioned as possible chairmen were former Senator George Wharton Pepper, Philadelphia attorney; New England's candidates, Sen. Henry Cabot Lodge of Massachusetts, and Henry P. Fletcher of Rhode Island, former GOP national chairman and two members supported by the far westerners—former Governor Alf Landon of Kansas, the GOP's 1936 standard bearer, and Sen. John Thomas of Idaho.

Since the chairman of the powerful resolutions committee will have a strong voice in the formulation of party principles, insiders viewed his selection as of extreme importance.

Thomas, who succeeded Borah in the United States senate and has carried on his non-intervention stand, had some support from those who wish the Republicans to adopt a vigorous anti-war plank.

Later in the week, the committee holds hearings on various proposed planks with drafting of a stand on the war situation looming as the most important as well as the knottiest problem.

In Washington Rep. Hamilton Fish, (R) N. Y., disclosed that he will appear on behalf of other isolationist congressmen to urge the party to go on record "that this country will not go to war unless it is invaded or the Monroe Doctrine is violated."

Fish said he also would ask the committee to recommend a strong "anti-fifth column" plank which would specifically urge outlawing the Communist party, deportation of "alien agitators," and registration of all aliens.

Meanwhile Philadelphia already had the aspect of a convention city, with many delegates here, the vanguard of supporters of the various presidential hopefuls established in hotel headquarters, and campaign banners prominently displayed.

The Voice of BROADWAY

—By DOROTHY KILGALLEN

Speaking for Myself.

My observation of the Broadway scene and the celebrities who walk through it have forced me of late into the conclusion that in instances of Glamor vs. Talent the public storms after the Glamor, and that if you happen to have both, it is practically impossible to avoid living a life full of inconveniences and embarrassment.

I am thinking at the moment of Joan Crawford, who always seems to magnetize an unprecedented number of autograph hounds wherever she goes—so many that I am sure every child in New York must have several copies of her signature.

I saw Joan with Helen Hayes the other evening at a performance of the Vivien Leigh-Laurence Olivier "Romeo and Juliet," and her presence, quiet as it was, caused such a stampede in the audience that she must have been annoyed for her own sake, and humiliated by the disturbance to the actors performing on the stage.

Not even the worst critic of the behavior of film stars in public could have blamed Joan for the uproar. She was not there showing off at a premiere; she attended one of the last nights of the run. No press agent had announced her coming, and she did nothing to call attention to herself except wear her own face, which I suppose was unavoidable.

Yet between the acts, she was hemmed in by literally hundreds of bad-mannered fans, who leaned all over the First Lady of the Theater to get Joan's signature, blocked the aisles, and inconvenienced half the audience.

In the end of the play, they did not wait for Juliet to die before they had raced down the aisles to where the actresses were sitting, rattling programs and gabbing noisily while the poor performers on the stage struggled to make themselves heard by that portion of the audience which had paid money to hear the play.

It was at this time that Joan arose and left the theater, preferring to miss the end of the play rather than cause a mob scene.

I don't know what the remedy for this is; I am just suggesting that it seems a very irksome penalty to impose upon a star, to make it impossible for her to enjoy an evening at the theater without wrecking the performances of her friends on the other side of the footlights.

Nothing would induce me to join the gallery in a golf match. It strikes me as being very tiring, and awfully oh-hummy. . . . I loved "Ladies in Retirement"—I like even bad horror plays, but this one was slick as well as shivery.

Insects are my pet aversion in the animal kingdom—they are one of the reasons why I prefer a nice clean night club to a country lane.

I just watched the launching of a new battleship—a beautiful sleek, long thing, gray, brick red, and black. I'd rather have a waterfront view than any other from my window.

I saw "The Phantom of the Opera" last week at a Sixth Avenue theater that shows nothing but old flickers, and when I say flicker I mean they really do. But such fun to watch, and the management doesn't seem to care if you talk back to the actors.

Wire from B. G. to D. K.:

"Rumors about retirement silly. Am planning vacation after Catalina Island engagement to fix leg. Doctor's orders. But will keep band going without me in meantime. Will rejoin band later in summer to fulfill all engagements. Regards, Benny."

I love onion sandwiches, steak with onions, and onion soup, but a plain undressed onion in a dish frightens me.

Among the least photogenic figures in public life are Sinclair Lewis, John L. Lewis, and Mayor LaGuardia. But His Honor's pictures are always amusing, because he makes such fierce faces, and movies of John L. Lewis are intriguing if you just watch his eyebrows going up and down like elevators. Photographs of Lily Pons invariably libel her.

I think I will write a note to Postmaster General Farley and tell him I think he needs some new mail trucks. The ones I see around look awfully out of date.

Elsie Robinson, who I supposed might be called the dean of women columnists, is in town, chipper as ever. She's the most motherly reporter I ever encountered, aside from being one of the best.

I remember once she asked me: "Where are you going?" and when I replied, "I'm taking a plane to Tulsa," she said, "Well, my dear, it's very cold in those planes, I hope you'll wear woolen stockings."

I've never ridden a surf board behind a fast boat, but sometimes, when I'm very happy, I think I know how that must feel. . . . I love the new Cafe Pierre. Very chic, very cool, very gay, and what more do you want on a hot day in June?

Hollywood Speaks---

—By ROBBIN COONS

The new "Four Sons" uses only the title of the old silent film success. Today's picture is an illumination of tragic pages from recent history—the Munich pact, the cession of the Sudetenland, the conquest of Czechoslovakia, the invasion of Poland—as that history affected one family.

The Bernles are Czechs of German blood. Their father died in the first World war. They live in the Sudetenland, just across the border from bayonet-bristling Germany. Frau Bernle has four sons. Chris (Ameche) is a loyal Czech; Karl (Curtis) has joined the Nazis, first secretly then openly; Joseph (Lowery), an artist, goes to America for a career; Fritz (Ernest) is the youngest.

Sweetheart of Chris is Anna (Hughes). First break in the family comes when Anna and Karl discover love. This is patched when big-hearted Chris forgives, and marriage ensues. But the political quarrel between the brothers, like the history that fosters it, marches on inexorably. Frau Bernle (Leontovich) is all mother, her great concern her children.

History (or you may prefer to call it Hitler) takes three of them from her, leaves her finally with a new Iron Cross and a ticket to America, where with Joseph she may hope to find peace again.

The power of "Four Sons" springs from its integrity as relentless drama, from the skill with which writer and director have pointed their climaxes, employing word and expression and an exceptionally forceful camera to artful effect. There is no maudlin straining for audience tears. Leontovich makes a screen debut which places her among the stars. Only rarely does her long stage training betray itself in touches of theatricalism. Mary Beth Hughes makes a bid for recognition as Hitler-happy Anna.

"Susan and God." Screen-play by Anita Loos from Rachel Crothers play. Directed by George Cukor. Principals: Joan Crawford, Fredric March, Ruth Hussey, John Carroll, Rita Hayworth, Nigel Bruce, Bruce Cabot, Rose Hobart, Constance Collier, Rita Quigley, Marjorie Main.

More power to Crawford for this daring (for her) excursion into the strange field of comedy. As scatterbrained Susan, who makes a new religion her hobby and inflicts it upon her friends, but neglects to apply it to herself until almost too late, Joan is surprisingly successful. She's good, too, in the serious emotional scenes.

"Susan and God" is talky, as you would expect, and it's too long for comfort, but it is bolstered by an interesting theme and excellent acting—particularly by March as the estranged husband who finally tames Susan; by Hussey as the likeable "other woman"; by Quigley as the neglected child, and by Crawford. Miss Main reliably supplies more than her quota of laughs, which abound through the unreeling.

Angaran, Radoumis Handcuff Fostoria In Twin Bill

Missler's Home Run Is Feature Of Double Win

Mansfield Catcher Collects Homer With Bases Loaded; Braves Win, 11-3 and 7-1.

By CHARLES MARTIN

SMASHING the ball to all corners of the park and enjoying a field day on the base paths the Mansfield Braves chalked up a double victory over Fostoria at the Fairground yesterday before 600 spectators to climb within five and a half games of first place in the Ohio State league race.

Eatilo Angaran and Alex Radoumis, righthanders, handled the mound assignments as the Braves finished on top by scores of 11 to 3 and 7 to 1. The hurlers gave up five hits apiece.

Mansfield pounded out 26 hits, including a home run, three triples and a trio of doubles in turning back the Red Birds.

A feature of the initial triumph was Walt Missler's homer in the eighth frame with the bases loaded. It was the first time this season any player has secured a home run inside the park. His lusty drive hit the fence in left field and bounded half way back to second base before the Fostoria outfielder could retrieve the ball.

Manager Dewey Stover and his hard-hitting warriors were in Fostoria today and will tangle with the Red Birds under the lights tonight. George Laurila is scheduled to face Fostoria.

The Braves will return to the Fairground Tuesday at 8:15 p. m. to meet Fostoria before a "ladies' night" gathering. Bob Arnold is expected to draw the starting assignment.

Spotting Fostoria to a 2 to 1 lead in the third frame of the opener, the Braves teed off to tally three times in that chapter to take a lead that was never relinquished.

Fostoria, however, by virtue of "Popeye" Reeves' four bagger over the left field fence in the seventh, crawled within a run of the Braves' advantage but the eighth inning uprising which was capped by Missler's homer gave Mansfield six runs and allowed it to coast through.

It looked like Fostoria might eke out a win in the seven-inning night cap after the Red Birds knotted the score at 1-all in the second. That was all they could get off Ramoumis and Mansfield kept pounding away and climaxed its scoring with three runs in the sixth.

Pilot Stover was happy over the way Angaran and Radoumis performed. It marked both hurlers' second straight win and assured the Braves' chief of two more starters.

Eldon Dice's brilliant hitting in the first game was a highlight of the afternoon. He socked out a triple and three singles in five trips to the plate. Howard Beals, and Stover also added triples to the 15-hit attack.

Mansfield used a revamped lineup yesterday. Hal Hundemer, regular second baseman, suffered a leg injury against Lima Friday night and Stover left him on the sidelines.

Dick Morse, third baseman, took over the keystone duties and Gene Woodling, a rookie from Akron, who joined the Braves yesterday, replaced Morse at third. Both youngsters turned in creditable performances.

The twin victories enabled Mansfield to cut Lima's second place advantage to two and a half games.

Stover gave a demonstration of base stealing in the night cap with three stolen bases. The pilot and Beals pulled a double steal in the first inning of that game with Stover crossing the plate with the Braves' first run.

* * *

Morse got three singles and Woodling a double and single to pace the Braves at the plate in the second tilt.

EAST CONCEDED CHANCE TO WIN POUGHKEEPSIE

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y.—(AP)—The "poor old east" today at last was conceded a lasting thimble chance to win the varsity event of the Poughkeepsie 1940 regatta.

The East thinks it has a couple of extra classy crews in undefeated Cornell, and once-beaten Columbia; and in Navy and Syracuse which are labeled the darkest of all dark horses in the history of this event. The betting odds for the race tonight, however, favor Washington at 7-5.

Brave Safe at First

Walt Missler, Mansfield catcher, is pictured above as he beat out a hit in the second inning of the nightcap against Fostoria at the Fairground yesterday. Mansfield won the Ohio State league contest by a 7 to 1 score. Missler, who hit a home run with the bases loaded in the eighth frame of the first game, didn't score, however, as the side was retired in order after he reached first. David is the first basemen ready to receive the throw.

Tinkeys Score Double Victory Over Barnes Challengers

ALLOWING only a scant five-hit total for both games of a twin bill, the Tinkey Lumber softball club imposed a double blackout on the Barnes Challengers at North Lake park diamond yesterday.

* * *

The Tinkeys pounded Beeman in the first setto for eight hits to score a 7 to 0 victory, then came back in the second to get nine off Gonscinski and Kasmerski to gain a 9 to 0 decision.

Winebrenner, Tinkey ace, permitted the Barnes club only two hits in the first contest, while McCarter held the Challengers to three in the second.

Winebrenner, earlier this season, pitched a no-hit, no-run thriller on the same diamond. He is the only softball hurler in the city this year who has been able to attain a perfect game.

Williams, Tinkey catcher, stole hitting honors yesterday by smashing out a total of four hits in the two games. He managed three hits in the second game and one in the first setto. Williams also clicked off a double in each setto.

* * *

Curry, Tinkey short stop, was the most sensational hitter of the day with two home runs, both of them coming in the first game.

Hermans Tally Two Victories Over Massillon

Mansfield Softballers Mark Up Fourth and Fifth Straight Wins.

Out to scribble into the books one of the finest records ever compiled by a Mansfield softball team, the Sons of Herman registered their fourth and fifth straight softball triumphs at Massillon yesterday by handing D. V. A's a twin defeat. The scores were 4 to 3 and 10 to 2.

Led by the sensational hitting of Harry Ross and George Hummel, the Hermans, after having a battle in taking the first contest, ran wild in the night cap. Ross collected a home run and triple and Hummel added a pair of doubles and a single to the 12-hit attack.

* * *

Manager Frank Beeber's classy combine grabbed the lead in the early innings of both tilts and never trailed.

In the opener, Freddie Carver and Aid Geiger limited the touted Massillon club to eight hits, while Jim Fullager took over in the second and set the D. V. A.'s down with four bingles.

The Hermans scored once in the first and added two runs in the fourth to take the advantage in the initial affray. They added another marker in the eight, but had to throttle a desperate D. V. A. rally in the ninth to win. The losers pushed over three scores in that chapter.

After gaining a 3-2 lead in the second setto, the Hermans tallied three times in the fifth and duplicated the feat in the sixth to put the contest on ice.

* * *

The Mansfield outfit only had five hits in the opener, but Harold Aston, Ed Henrich and Bob Schaeffer pounded out a double apiece to turn the tide.

TEAMS COMPETE TONIGHT

EVANSTON, Ill.—(NS)—Track champions of the Big Ten and Pacific Coast conferences will compete tonight at Dyche stadium in their fourth annual dual track meet with the coast team heavily favored to remain undefeated in the series.

Nearly All Players Sign Statement; Tribe Defeats A's.

CLEVELAND — (AP) — Withdrawal of the Cleveland Indians' demands for a new manager and agreement by Chief Oscar Vitt to play ball put the Tribe back on the American league pennant war path today.

Nearly all of the players attended a peace pow-wow and signed a statement taking back last week's clamor for Vitt's resignation.

Hatchet burying ceremonies were completed with Club President Alva Bradley's benediction "It's a closed matter now."

Vitt said "I am pleased, of course, at the decision reached by the players. We will go along and do the best we can. All I ever wanted to do was win ball games. I have no animosity toward any of the team."

Proceedings at the players' meeting were kept secret. Twelve team members had protested against Vitt's outspoken criticisms and charged the resultant jitters were spoiling the Indians' chances of winning the pennant.

Twenty-one players signed the withdrawal statement. The only ones not signing were Outfielder Jeff Heath and Catcher Hank Helf, both in the hospital; Infielder Oscar Grimes, recovering from injuries; and Outfielder Roy Weatherly who walked out of the meeting. Weatherly was not one of the original protestants.

The Indians' spirits and percentage column were helped no little by a Sunday double victory over Philadelphia to the tune of 4 to 2 and 4 to 3.

Bob Feller's three-hit and 12-strikeout performance made him the master of the first game but it took all the Indian ace had to beat a new star which blazed upon the baseball firmament.

Porter Vaughan, a tall blond left hander just graduated from the University of Richmond (Va.), held the Tribe to two hits in seven innings. He was removed for a pinch hitter and his successor, George Caster, lost the game.

Shortstop Lou Boudreau of Cleveland hit a home run off Vaughan.

Another pitching duel resulted in victory for Al Milnar over Johnny Babich in the second game. Milnar was touched for eight hits and Babich nine.

* * *

The Cleveland stadium crowd numbered 18,006. The Indians are idle today. They play Washington here tomorrow night.

Snead, Guldahl Win Inverness Crown

By FRITZ HOWELL

TOLEDO—(AP)—Sixteen of the nation's top-notch professionals were homeward bound today, their pockets lined with $6,500 picked up in the sixth annual Inverness four-ball matches.

Sam Snead, the long-driving star from Shawnee-on-Delaware, Pa., and Ralph Guldahl of Chicago, two-time national open king, had the lion's share of $1,500, but even the last-place pairs in the par-shattering classic split $350.

* * *

Snead and Guldahl won the tourney with a score of plus 15, the highest finished "up" on a foe, while a "minus" goes along with each hole finished "down."

Jimmy Demaret, the "Laughing Boy" from Houston, Tex., paired with Dick Metz to finish second with plus 12. The $700 which Jimmy won pushed him around Ben Hogan to the top among the gold-gathering professionals with a total of $8,477 since Jan. 1.

The other teams, with their scores and winning:

Jug McSpaden and Lawson Little, plus 9, $800; Henry Picard and Johnny Revolta, plus 1, $700; Gene Sarazen and Clayton Heafner, minus 3, $600; Horton Smith and Jimmy Thomson, minus 6, $500; Ed Dudley and Billy Burke, and Walter Hagen and Byron Nelson, minus 14, $350 each.

Demaret-Metz received $200 for scoring the most birdies, 48, for the 126 holes, and another $200 for the lowest medal score for the route, 449 or 48 under par. Picard and Revolta were awarded $200 for the best medal round, 61, or 10 under even figures.

The eight two-man teams tore the course apart for 308 birdies and three eagles over the 126 holes, finishing 282 under par.

Vander Meer Selected To Face Phillys

Cincinnati's Reinforced By The Addition of Arnovich.

PHILADELPHIA — (AP) — Refusing to be driven down for the count in the hot National League pennant race because Brooklyn planned it that way, Cincinnati's Reds were up to second place again as they returned here today for a two-game series with the Phils.

The Rhinelanders, reinforced by the big bat of outfielder Morrie Arnovich and trumpeting new defiance with 1-0 and 5-2 twin victories over the league leading Dodgers, arranged for Johnny Vander Meer or Joe Beggs to try their twisters against Walter "Boom Boom" Beck.

* * *

The Cincinnati club held high hopes for Arnovich, obtained from the Phils in a trade for Johnny Rizzo. He led National League batters more than half of last season, ending the year with a .324 average, but this year has done no better than .199.

Paul Derringer's six hit shutout pitching stopped the Dodgers in the opener with Cincinnati Sunday, after Brooklyn had taken two straight from the Rhinelanders.

Lonnie Frey marked up the 1-0 victory by clouting a home run with two out and nobody on in the ninth inning. A fluke, the ball lodged between the right-field wall and a screen. It was the second hit and all allowed by Whitlow Wyatt. The game was Derringer's ninth triumph.

Jim Turner kept Brooklyn well under control in the second game. Successive homers by Pete Cascarart and Leo Durocher in the eighth inning of the nightcap were the only runs scored by the flatbushers all day.

* * *

Curt Davis, recently obtained as one of the Dodgers' pennant tickets from the Cardinals, allowed the Reds two runs in the first inning and gave up nine hits.

New Dodger

Pitcher Curt Davis, now a member of the Brooklyn team, warms up for the first time in the Dodger bullpen. Curt came to the Dodgers along with Joseph (Ducky) Medwick, star outfielder, in a deal with the St. Louis Cardinals.

Nick's Place Wins 2 Games

Defeats Shelby Hammonds, 19-10 in 1st, 12-3 in 2nd.

Nick's Place softball club scored a twin victory over the Shelby Hammonds in Shelby yesterday, taking the first game by a 19 to 10 score and the second by a 12 to 3 tally.

* * *

Appleman was on the mound for the Nicks in the first game. Metz took over the rubber in the second tilt. Shelby pitchers were Fagan and Phelps, respectively.

Reds Annex Two

St. Louis Hands Yankees Two Setbacks; Cincy Tops Dodgers.

By BILL WHITE
(AP) Press Sports Writer)

THERE certainly was no joy in Mudville when mighty Casey struck out, but Mudville was a gay carnival town in comparison with the gloom that befogged New York after the double shellackings the Yankees, Giants and Dodgers took in Sunday's tussles.

Most amazing was the way the lowly Browns turned on the World Champion Yankees and beat them 12-6 and 6-5.

Paced by Pitcher Vernon Kennedy's homerun, they out-slugged the champs in the first game and then punched their way courageously out of a hole to win the second game in the late innings.

The saddest case of the day was the fate of Brooklyn's Whitlow Wyatt. He twirled his best game of the season—a two hitter—but had to accept a 1-0 defeat when one of the two hits turned out to be a homerun from the bat of Cincinnati's Linus Frey. The Reds won the second 5-2.

* * *

The Giants, chesty as a pigeon over their eight game winning streak, were talking about charging the Pirates admission to get into the Polo grounds. However, Max Butcher pitched a two-hitter at them and Truett Sewell followed with a creditable performance and the Giants went down helplessly, 5-0 and 5-3.

Otherwise in the National league the St. Louis Cardinals made it four in a row over the Phillies, winning 9-3 and 3-1.

The Cubs and the Bees split their twin bill, the Cubs getting enough inspiration from Claude Passeau's five hitter to win 9-1 after losing the first in 11 innings by dint of some sloppy fielding, 5-4.

The Boston Red Sox kept atop the American league, via the home run route. Ted Williams' 12th inning homer gave them a 4-3 win over the Chicago White Sox and homers by Pitcher Jack Wilson and Manager Joe Cronin helped win the second game, 14-5.

The Cleveland Indians socked the Athletics 4-2 on Bob Feller's three-hit hurling and 4-3 on Al Milnar's eight hit performance.

* * *

The Detroit Tigers made a sweep of their series with the Washington Nats, claiming an 8-7 victory on Barney McCosky's pay-off single in the eighth that scored two runs.

Holds Firmer Grip on Lead

Canton Terriers Take Two From Portsmouth.

CANTON —(AP)— Canton's rugged Terriers held a firmer grip on the Mid-Atlantic league lead today after taking both games of a doubleheader with the Portsmouth Red Birds yesterday.

The Bulldogs took the opener, 14 to 2, and came back in the night contest with a 6 to 0 shutout. Tommy Fine limited the Birds to four hits under the lights.

* * *

At Akron, the Yankees and Youngstown divided a twin bill, the visitors taking the first 8 to 4 in 11 innings and Akron winning the second 5 to 0. Mel Queen turned in a one-hit pitching performance in the seven-inning nightcap. Jerry White homered with the bases loaded to win the first game for the Browns.

Charleston evened up the series at Dayton with a 4 to 2 victory. Charleston made eight hits and the Wings six.

* * *

Today's schedule: Charleston at Dayton, Youngstown at Akron, Portsmouth at Canton.

Watson Cops Decathlon

Sets Two New Records as Scott Loses.

CLEVELAND — (AP) — Big Bill Watson wears the national decathlon crown today—the first Negro ever to win this title of supremacy in all-around track and field prowess.

* * *

The 21-year-old protege of boxing champion Joe Louis set two new decathlon records in taking the title away from Joe Scott of Western Reserve university.

Watson's new marks were 151 feet 3⅝ inches in the discus and 10.8 seconds in the 100-meter dash. Another world decathlon record of 4 minutes 30.4 seconds for the 1,500-meter run was set by Alphonso Gavrilavicz of Detroit.

Watson scored 7,523 points in the two-day 10-event contest. Lee Todd of the University of Colorado was second with 6,942. Scott, who had won two previous decathlons, was third with 6,704.

Hens Hit on All Cylinders

Score Double Victory Over Indianapolis.

(By Associated Press)

The Toledo Mudhens, like their major league cousins, the St. Louis Browns, are serving notice on their American Association rivals that they no longer are the circuit doormat.

* * *

The Hens, strengthened considerably since the season started, are hitting on all cylinders now, having won five of seven games and climbed out of the cellar in the past week, climaxing the spurt with a double victory over Indianapolis Sunday, 4-2 and 2-1.

* * *

St. Paul, in the cellar, matched Toledo's pace by clipping league-leading Kansas City twice, 7 to 4 and 2 to 1.

Minneapolis, taking advantage of the Blues' lapse, won both ends of a twin bill with Milwaukee and cut Kansas City's lead to one game. The scores were 14 to 8 and 7 to 4.

* * *

Louisville jumped into third place by downing Columbus twice, 5 to 3 in 13 innings and 9 to 0 in seven innings.

STOCK MARKET RETREATS ON FRENCH BLOW

Some Recovery Made After Losses of One to Five Points Registered.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK — Defeat of the French hit the stock market a blow today but, considering the importance of the news, the shock was fairly well taken.

After leaders had tumbled 1 to more than 5 points, losses were halved in some cases near the fourth hour.

German and Italian bonds shot up in the loans market. Wheat futures tumbled but subsequently steadied. Other commodities were irregularly lower. "Free" sterling weakened.

Conspicuous shares on the retreat were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Douglas Aircraft, Westinghouse, Chrysler, General Motors, Anaconda, Great Northern, Montgomery Ward, United Aircraft, Du Pont, Loft, American Telephone and Texas Corp.

Noted was the survey of the magazine "Steel" which stressed the rapid expansion in this field due mainly to increased demand for military equipment both from home and abroad.

OLD 999 STILL HAS STEAM UP

Record-Setting Locomotive Stops Two Shows.

NEW YORK — (AP) — There's plenty of life yet in old 999, New York Central locommotive which set a record of 112½ miles an hour between Rochester and Buffalo in 1893.

She jumped the tracks while performing in the "railroads on parade" exhibit at the world's fair, crashed through her bumper stop and churned up the dirt in the yard offstage.

She caused the cancellation of two shows.

FRANCE'S FLEET VITAL TO BRITAIN

War Expert Discusses Possible Strategy as Result of French Surrender.

If the Germans take over the French fleet, it would require a considerable time before the ships could be effectively operated, but union of the French and Italian fleets to challenge the British navy to a decisive sea battle must, however, be considered a possibility.

The British government recently announced that the whole of the Italian navy is now in the Mediterranean with the implication that it is bottled up because of the Suez canal at one end and the extreme difficulty of a battle fleet passing through the narrow Gibraltar strait into the Atlantic.

Should the Germans take over the French navy and join the Italians in the Mediterranean, it would be bad naval strategy because of the possibilities of being trapped there.

The confined area of the Mediterranean would make a great sea fight precarious and the British strategy would probably be based on this fact. The Italians would probably have to risk sending their warships past Gibraltar into the Atlantic if they agreed with any German proposal for a combined challenge against the British navy. These facts account for the confidence of the British that they can continue the war at sea against Germany and Italy single-handed.

The German expectation of defeating Great Britain is based essentially on an invasion of the British Isles rather than on victory at sea or by colonial operations.

NEARING END

Present G. A. R. Encampment Has 20 Veterans.

COLUMBUS—(AP)—The 74th encampment of the Ohio Grand Army of the Republic may be its last.

Officials in charge of the five-day session which opened yesterday said that half of the 20 veterans at last year's encampment died during the year.

THEATERS

Film Triple-Starred.

"Torrid Zone" the comedy-drama that is showing at the Ohio, is supposedly one of the fastest and funniest of the current films. It is triple-starred with James Cagney, Ann Sheridan and Pat O'Brien. The story is laid somewhere in the banana belt in South America. Supporting the three stars are Andy Devine, the ever-funny pal and Helen Vinson who plays "the other woman" role. Miss Sheridan also sings, one of the numbers being "Mi-Cabellero."

First All Comedy Role.

Loretta Young appears in her first all-comedy role in "The Doctor Takes a Wife," which is the feature attraction at the Madison. Appearing with her in the masculine lead is Ray Milland, who plays the title role, that of a medical professor. He greatly dislikes career women and a young author, played by Loretta, who writes a book in praise of spinsterhood. Gail Patrick and Reginald Gardiner, the British comedian, are in the supporting cast.

Loretta Young On Bill.

Loretta Young also is to be seen at the Majestic, beginning Tuesday, in "Eternally Yours," which is a romantic story, starring her with David Niven. A young magician, who hasn't time to settle down and make a home for his young wife, finds he has to give her up (at least for a time) to another man. But in spite of the society life and thrills Niven and Loretta are finally reunited. The co-feature is "Allegheny Uprising," which stars Claire Trevor and John Wayne.

Epic Tale of Indian Wars.

Spencer Tracy, twice Academy award winner, plays the role of Major Rogers, the greatest Indian fighter who ever lived, the leader of Rogers' Rangers, in "Northwest Passage" showing at the Ritz theater. Robert Young has the romantic role of Langdon Towne in this thrilling tale of the pre-Revolutionary pioneers who wrested an empire from the Indians. Stan Laurel and Oliver Hardy are seen in the comedy "A Chump at Oxford."

Walt Disney Fantasy.

A large cast of typical Disney characters are to be seen in "Pinocchio," the Walt Disney's second feature-length production, which is showing at the Park theater. This technicolor fantasy tells the story of a little "wooden head" doll which comes to life under the spell of a good fairy after he has proven himself worth the birth. The co-feature is "The Magnificent Fraud," which is a drama telling of the dictatorship in a mythical South American country.

LARD PROCESS

New Development Claimed to Retain Freshness.

CHICAGO—(AP)—John Holmes, president of Swift and Company, announced today the discovery of what he described as a "revolutionary development" in the processing of lard.

The development, the meat packer president said, involved the addition of small quantities of a vegetable substance obtained from tropical trees, making it possible to protect lard's natural advantages and at the same time keeping it fresh when exposed to air without refrigeration.

Ambulances and police emergency squads sped to the locale of the crash and their members found five bodies sprawled grotesquely on one street and seven around the corner in another street.

The bombers were part of a flight of four plane which were flying in close formation.

A telephone operator at Creedmore state hospital eye-witnessed the crash.

"I saw four planes flying in formation," she said. "Suddenly, two of them came together and exploded in the air."

One pilot was still living when pulled from the wreckage of his plane but his neck was broken and he died a few minutes later.

SECOND FLEET FOR ATLANTIC NOW PROPOSED

Senators Discuss Wisdom of Doubling Army to Total of 750,000 Men.

FAST CRUISERS WANTED

Heavily Armored Ships With 11-Inch Guns Predicted For Eastern Defense.

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON —(U P)— President Roosevelt today signed the Vinson bill authorizing an 11 per cent increase of the United States navy by adding 22 new aircraft carriers, cruisers and submarines and an equal number of auxiliary naval vessels.

WASHINGTON — (AP) — A new $1,200,000,000 expansion of the navy to provide for 84 additional warships was proposed in an administration-approved bill today by Chairman Vinson (D., Ga.) of the house naval committee.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON— An early administration proposal for building a separate Atlantic fleet was forecast in congressional quarters today, while senators discussed the wisdom of doubling the army to total 750,000 men.

Inasmuch as the main fleet is being kept in the Pacific, well-informed sources explained that talk of developing Atlantic defenses arose from the possibility of Allied defeat in the European war.

The basis of a second fleet, these sources said, would be a new type of fast cruiser of 20,000 to 28,000 tons. Rep. Maas (R-Minn) predicted that it would be heavily-armored, with 11-inch guns, and would be designed especially to withstand aerial bombing.

Rear Admiral Ernest J. King said in a radio speech last night that a two-ocean navy might be a future requirement for the United States.

"For the present, however," he counselled, "we must concentrate on building up the navy now authorized. When we get along with that building we can consider the advisability of a two-ocean navy." Congress has authorized a broad expansion of the fleet.

As for the army, the suggestion for increasing it to 750,000 men was voiced by Senator Lodge (R-Mass). A measure now before congress would place the authorized strength at 375,000, and Lodge explained that he had not yet decided whether to press his larger figure immediately

Hitler Adds Another Victory to Blitzkrieg Total

With France capitulating to the German war machine within 48 days from the time Adolf Hitler moved into the low countries, the German fuehrer added another military triumph to the list he began to compile when he "anschlussed" Austria without the firing of a single shot. In addition to the nations whose fall is depicted above, he now also controls Norway, Holland and Belgium. Only Britain remains to fight the powerful Nazis, and the British have announced they will fight "to the end."

11 KILLED IN PLANE CRASH

Two U. S. Army Bombers Lock Wings, Falling in Flames at New York.

BULLETIN

TULSA, Okla.—(AP)—A mid-air collision between two training planes killed two students and an instructor today six miles east of Municipal airport. Two persons on the ground were injured.

(By International News Service)

NEW YORK—At least 11 persons met death today when two army bombers flying from Mitchell field, locked wings over Queens Village, Long Island and crashed in flames.

All eleven of those who perished were army pilots or enlisted men of the U. S. air force.

Flaming plane parts crashing down on three homes in the suburban village partially demolished one, and a mother and her two children were burned, perhaps fatally.

The army men were identified as:

Lieut. Paul Burlingame, former West Point football star.
Lieut. J. F. Dow, Hulpin, Me.

Reds Move Swiftly Into Baltic States

Russia Adds Estonia And Latvia to Conquest of Lithuania; Berlin Doesn't 'Welcome' Situation

(By Associated Press)

MOSCOW—Soviet Russian troops marched into unresisting Estonia and Latvia today, climaxing a series of swift moves which consolidated Russia's position in the Baltic.

News that the Red army was on the march was disclosed by the Russian radio only a few hours after the two countries had yielded to Soviet demands that they permit unimpeded passage of troops and reorganize their governments.

Lithuania capitulated to similar demands Saturday, and Russian troops already are occupying strategic points there.

Tass, official news agency, announced the agreement of Estonia and Latvia to the Russian demands which. Tass said, were motivated by a need for "honest and conscientious observance" of mutual assistance pacts with the two Baltic states.

The Soviet asked new governments "capable and willing to ensure honest implementation" of the pacts; and free passage of troops to "forestall possible provocational actions against Soviet garrisons" installed in Estonia and Latvia under the pacts signed last fall.

2 BUCYRUS MEN DROWN IN RIVER

One Victim of Sunday Mishap Near Fremont Was Father of Five Children.

BUCYRUS — Robert Etzinger, 30, father of five children, and Paul Edward Tallman, 29, both of Bucyrus, were drowned yesterday in the Sandusky river, seven miles north of Fremont, when the outboard motor boat which they were testing capsized in 30-feet of water.

Earl Tallman, younger brother of Paul, was also in the boat, but managed to cling to its side until help arrived.

Etzinger, a native of Bucyrus, had been unable to swim since injuring both legs in an auto race accident at the Bucyrus fairground several years ago.

Etzinger is survived by his wife, Florence; five children, William, Barbara, Mary, Robert and Joan at home, and two half-brothers, Carl and Harold of Bucyrus. He was a member of St. Paul's Lutheran church.

Funeral services will be held at the Henderson and Lutz funeral home at 2:30 p. m. Tuesday in charge of Rev. David Mumford. Burial will be in Oakwood cemetery.

Tallman is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Tallman; a brother Earl and a sister, Mrs. Gertrude McDougal all of Bucyrus.

The body is at the Wise funeral home where services will be held at 2 p. m. Wednesday with Rev. J. H. Butler of the First Methodist church officiating. Burial will be in Oakwood cemetery.

REV. BRAKER TO TAKE NEW POST

Park Avenue Baptist Minister Accepts Call to Church in Pittsburgh, Pa.

Rev. Hayes M. Braker, for more than 11 years pastor of the Park Avenue Baptist church, has accepted a call to the Mt. Lebanon Baptist church, Pittsburgh, and will leave Mansfield in August.

He presented his resignation at the morning service of his church yesterday. Action upon it will be taken next Sunday following the regular service. Rev. Braker is scheduled to assume his new duties Aug. 11.

Rev. Braker came to Mansfield in February, 1929, after serving a Zanesville pastorate for two years. During his pastorate here, he has been active in numerous community activities.

He has been chairman of the Richland county Red Cross chapter, president of the Mansfield Ministerial association, and a member of the board of directors of the Y. M. C. A., and the advisory board of the Y. W. C. A.

Democrat Would Vote Split If Married Women Fired.

COLUMBUS — (INS) — Rep. Pat Dunn (D), of Tuscarawas county, today said he would vote for the proposal to split the state and national ballots provided Governor Bricker would fire all the married women now working for the state.

Dunn has frequently sponsored legislation which would limit state employment to men and single women.

Mansfield Pilot Training Under CAA Sharply Boosted

Civilian pilot training at Mansfield airport is to be more than doubled and perhaps tripled.

Word to this effect was received yesterday by James R. Harrington, airport manager and CAA inspector, from Charles E Cox, Chicago, who is in charge of CAA flying development for this area.

With 10 students now undergoing flying training at the airport—nine men and a girl—at least 15 more students will be enrolled, and the number may run as high as 30, Cox told Harrington.

The increase follows the adoption of a plan by the CAA to intensify its effort to develop civilian fliers. CAA Chairman Robert Hinckley announced in Washington yesterday a plan that would permit 30,000 students to complete training courses by the end of the year.

Details of how the additional students would be enrolled were not discussed by Cox, according to Harrington.

The additional students will start their training about July 1, but methods of selections have not been decided on.

Petain Announces End of Battle In Radio Broadcast

Sir Nevile Henderson Warns England 'German Invasion May be Expected This Month or July;' Blockade Plan Seriously Hit by Loss of French Fleet; Red Armies Take Estonia And Latvia

BULLETIN

BERLIN—(AP)—Adolf Hitler and his axis partner, Premier Mussolini of Italy, will meet tomorrow to decide on what peace terms France can have. (In Rome it was said the meeting probably would be held at Munich.)

BULLETIN

LES VERIERS, Switzerland (At the French Border) — (AP) — Two hours after Premier-Marshal Petain's broadcast announcement that he had asked the Germans for peace, a fierce battle began today on the plain behind Pontarlier, where large numbers of German motorized units found their path to the south blocked by French infantry.

(By Associated Press)

France asked Germany for an armistice today—the ninth nation to succumb to Hitler's armies in two years—as 84-year-old Marshal Petain, new French premier and World war "hero of Verdun," declared:

"It is necessary to try to end the fighting."

Petain announced France's readiness to lay down her arms in a broadcast from Bordeaux.

"I made contact with the adversary last night, asking him as soldier to soldier to seek with me the means to stop the fight," he said.

Even without knowledge of whether the powerful French fleet, second biggest in Europe, would be involved in the projected French surrender, Britain voiced a grim determination to "fight on to the end."

England was told by Sir Nevile Henderson, the last British ambassador to Berlin, that a German invasion may now be expected "this month or July."

Authorized Nazis in Berlin said bluntly:

"No separate armistice with France is imaginable, except in terms of complete capitulation."

The Berlin radio broadcast an official announcement that Marshal Petain "has proclaimed France's capitulation."

It said Hitler would meet Premier Mussolini of Italy shortly to discuss the situation.

Two hours before Petain spoke, an official French army communique said fighting was continuing.

BRITISH KEEP ON FIGHTING

Empire Continues War Against Nazis 'Until Last' Says Official News Service.

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON —(AP)— The United States acted today to facilitate the delivery of war planes to the Allies by authorizing the ships to be flown across American borders.

(By International News Service)

LONDON—The British empire will continue to fight Nazi Germany to the last, despite decision of France to sue for peace, according to the Press Association, officially-designated British News Service.

The diplomatic correspondent of this organization wrote.

"It is learned that the statement issued last night that Great Britain is firmly and resolutely determined to continue the struggle until victory has been won still expresses the opinion of the British government.

"It is the unshakeable determination of the British government

Loss of the French fleet would mean a serious blow to Britain's hopes of ultimately forcing Germany to her knees through blockade.

Two other small nations in the Baltic area, in the north, felt the tread of invaders' boots as Russia's Red armies marched into Estonia and Latvia early today in accordance with Moscow's week-end demands, which were accepted by the little Baltic states. Russian troops occupied Lithuania Saturday.

The Soviet move was apparently two-fold:

1. To halt any possible German thrust into the Baltic.
2. To improve Russia's strategic position for possible offensive operations.

QUESTION: Disposition Of French Fleet Vital To Britain

(United Press War Expert)

French cessation of hostilities has caused the war against Germany and Italy to revert to its original strategy of a starvation sea blockade as the only way of possible victory. At the outset of hostilities the Allies had no expectation of winning the war on land, and were not prepared for open field fighting.

They counted on the strangulation efforts of the British and the French and the Maginot line. What disposition now will be made of the French navy must have an influence on the future course of events.

Should France surrender her warships to the Germans, the power of the blockade continued by the British navy alone will be weakened, though not necessarily to a fatal extent.

The primary weakness will consist of the long French Atlantic coastline, offering new ports of entry for goods for Germany, which will have to be added to the present limited North sea blockade area. The British, however, could overcome that defect to some extent by increasing the number

French Quit Fight Against Nazi Force

Marshal Petain Announces Battle End In Radio Broadcast; Hitler And Mussolini to Talk it Over

spondent, speaking from the same studio in Bordeaux where Premier Petain spoke, declared:

"The French intermediary is expected to be the ambassador of Spain. What the German terms will be, if they will give terms, none of us know as yet."

Taylor added that German troops at that moment were understood to be "not very far away from the place from which the French radio is now operating.

"When and if the Germans will arrive in Bordeaux, the present capital of France, none of us know at the present moment."

Bordeaux is in the far southwestern region of France, near the Bay of Biscay.

The reported capitulation came as France's great Maginot line—built at a cost of $500,000,000 and supposedly impregnable—was abandoned except for a skeleton defense force and Germany's armored legions smashed through and around the vast steel-and-concrete system of fortifications.

Reports from London said the first British reaction to the French collapse was a grim determination to fight on—as already voiced by Prime Minister Churchill—even if England itself falls to the Nazi invaders.

With onrushing German armies already having cut off France's "lost provinces" of Alsace and Lorraine by thundering down to the Swiss border at Pontarlier—while other Nazi columns reportedly captured Orleans on the river Loire, where Joan of Arc won her great victory—the new French cabinet met at Bordeaux to "await developments" on France's capitulation offer.

The German high command reported its troops, "relentlessly pursuing" the retreating French armies had crossed the Loire river.

It was behind this river, some 65 miles south of Paris, that the French had hoped to reform their broken lines for a defense which former Premier Paul Reynaud said would be carried into "the last corner of France."

About 1,000,000 French soldiers were reported surrounded in the Alsace-Lorraine area.

Most of the Maginot garrison—500,000 or more men—were withdrawing southward to a new line of defense pegged on Belfort in the west, fighting a rearguard action as they retired, Swiss reports said.

In Berlin, authorized sources threw cold water on rumors of "French capitulation offers."

The German high command announced fast-moving Nazi units had pushed through to the Swiss border near Besancon, France, about 200 miles southeast of Paris, closing a ring around entrapped French troops in Alsace and Lorraine.

The Germans were reported to be employing at least 150 divisions — 2,000,000 - 2,250,000 men — including many fresh troops, in a massive effort to smash French resistance.

While the question of whether France would—or could—continue to fight, remained uppermost in the capitals of the world, Britain voiced anew her determination to battle on to the end.

Authoritative sources in London said that even if the French found further resistance on their own soil impossible, Britain would fight to the end and that she would be aided in the struggle by the French fleet—second largest in Europe.

There seemed no reason to doubt that the fall of the Reynaud government was occasioned by a split on the policy which France should pursue in her hour of destiny.

It was made plain that the French cabinet, in its meetings yesterday, had closely scrutinized the possible extent of material assistance from the United States offered by President Roosevelt. The French radio also reported the cabinet had studied a "message" from Britain's Prime Minister Winston Churchill, but the nature of the message was not disclosed.

Germany, intent on giving the French armies no opportunity to make a stand, reported that her troops were advancing steadily everywhere on a front extending from the channel coast to the Swiss border.

Sharing the spotlight with the French cabinet upheaval was Soviet Russia's swift encroachment on the little Baltic nations ranged along Germany's northern frontier.

With an army estimated at 500,000 men already reported quartered on unresisting Lithuania, Russia announced that Estonia and Latvia had yielded to demands for free passage of Soviet troops and had agreed to form new governments.

The new government, Moscow said, would "insure honest inplementation" of Russia's mutual assistance pacts with the two nations. Moscow said Antanas Smetona, president of Lithuania, had crossed into Germany and been "interned."

The implications of the latest Russian moves were not clear, but Swedish sources said they were not entirely welcome in Berlin.

There were evidences of increasing activity in the newly opened war zone in the Mediterranean.

Italian bombers attacked air bases in southern France, French Corsica and Malta, and reported destruction of 40 French and two British planes. Sharp fighting also was reported along the frontier between Egypt and Italian Libya.

Dispatches from Alexandria said Italian warplanes had raided several Egyptian outposts.

British bombers set fire to Italian airdrome buildings at Diredawa, Ethiopia, and at Macaaca. The British also reported they had sunk four Italian submarines in recent action, while the Italians said they had destroyed one Allied underseas craft.

Text of Petain's Broadcast Halting Battle Given Here

NEW YORK—(UP)—Premier Marshal Philippe Petain's speech, as broadcast by the British Broadcasting Corporation and picked up here by the Columbia Broadcasting System, follows:

"French men and women:

"At the call of the French president I have assumed the leadership of the government of France.

"I have been thinking of those who have been fighting true to their old military traditions, against an enemy of huge numerical superiority. I also think of those old combatants whom I commanded during the last war. I have given myself to France to better her situation at this grave hour.

"At this moment I think of the unfortunate refugees, the men and women on the roads, driven away from their homes by the misfortunes of war.

"I express to them my sincerest sympathy and compassion.

"It is with a heavy heart that I tell you today that we must stop the fight.

"I sent a message to the enemy yesterday to ask him if he would meet with me, as between one soldier and another after the fight, and honorably, to seek a way to put an end to hostilities.

"Let all Frenchmen gather around the government over which I preside during these sad hours. And let them do their duty (one word inaudible) their faith in the destiny of their country."

Battles Continue Elsewhere After French Give up

LONDON—(AP)—Five Egyptian soldiers were killed and nine wounded in four raids by Italian bombers on Mersa Matruh, western Egypt, Sunday, Reuters, British news agency, reported from Mersa Matruh.

NEW YORK —(AP)— A broadcast on the wavelength of the French radio station TPA 13 intercepted this morning by NBC said the entire industrial center of Turin, Italy, had been destroyed by French air raiders. There was no further detail, except that anti-aircraft guns failed to function.

BERLIN —(AP— The sinking of the 1,400-ton British steamer Wellington Star by a German submarine was reported today by the German high command. No details were given.

CAIRO—(AP)—The Royal Air Force reported today "most successful raids" on the Italian air and naval bases at Tobruk, Libya.

said, "that the German victories have not yet been due to any secret weapons but to the coordination of men and machines. Ample manpower is the fundamental necessity of an adequate military machine."

Congress has virtually completed action on President Roosevelt's defense recommendations. Weekend developments in the preparedness program included:

1. Secretary Ickes appointed a defense committee in the interior department to arrange for quick movement of natural resources into preparedness work.

2. The CIO forecast comparatively slight reduction in the number of unemployed because of industrial production for defense purposes. There would be jobs at most for 700,000 or 800,000 more workers, it said.

3. Solicitor General Francis Biddle declared that fifth column problems were no cause for mass hysteria or justification of mob violence. He disclosed plans to double the patrol along the Mexican and Canadian borders to keep out aliens without proper entrance papers.

Pittman Replies To Lindbergh.

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Replying to Col. Charles A. Lindbergh's demand that the United States stop making "gestures with an empty gun," Senator Pittman (D., Nev.) has proposed that the flier "cease efforts to create unfounded war fear and lack of confidence in our government."

Pittman, chairman of the senate foreign relations committee, said in a radio speech Sunday night:

"If Colonel Lindbergh desires to help in our national defense, let him throw aside all of his false political advisers, and volunteer in the United States government as an expert in aviation."

Pittman's speech followed a broadcast Saturday night in which Lindbergh declared:

"This dabbing we have been doing in European affairs can lead us only to failure in the future as it has in the past. . . .

"We demand that foreign nations refrain from interfering in our hemisphere, yet we constantly interfere in theirs. . . . We have been doing to England and France what they did to Abyssinia, to Czecho-slovakia, to Poland, to Finland, to Norway—we have encouraged them to hope for help we cannot send."

To this Pittman deplied:

"Colonel Lindbergh evidently desires and intends to stop the purchase of materials in this country by Great Britain and France. . . . It is significent that when the United States had its markets open to Germany for all the materials, arms, and instruments of war that have built up Hitler's brutal machine, there was no such argument from Colonel Lindbergh."

Lindbergh contended that it was "useless to talk of sending American troops to Europe now, for we would need months of preparedness before we could train and equip even a small army."

"The United States has no desire to conquer Germany. We simply intend to prevent Hitler from conquering any country on the western hemisphere. . . . Would it be to the welfare of the United States if Hitler were stopped in Europe; if he were stopped, there would be no threat against the United States."

In a Boston address as an "answer" to Lindbergh, Col. Henry Breckinridge, the flier's former personal counsel, declared that "the blood-drenched Hitler is at our gates." He criticized those who would try to "lull the American people into a false sense of security." He did not mention Lindbergh.

area of 20,000 square miles and about 750,000 inhabitants. Their total peoples do not equal the population of Moscow.)

Some dispatches to Stockholm interpreted the Russian move as the first step toward participation in the European war.

(The Stockholm newspaper Allehanda reported Berlin opinion as "rather reserved" and said the Soviet action was not exactly welcomed." Another Berlin dispatch, however, said it was felt that "Soviet intention were known to the Germans in advance."

(Some Allied observers in London were hopefully seeking signs of Russian action against the increasing threat of a Hitler-dominated Europe, but reserved judgment was the general attitude, and there was little press speculation.)

Tass reported that "ex-President" Antantas Smetona of Lithuania and several other Lithuanian officials had crossed the border into Germany and promptly had been interned by German officials.

and the British empire to continue the struggle.

"An authoritative statement being issued tonight will reiterate Britain's determination to continue."

Authoritative circles, confirming "the Press Association announcement said:

"We have no reason to believe that France will act any differently from Poland, Norway and The Netherlands, who continued the struggle from outside their countries and who placed their full resources at the disposal of the Allies."

Great Britain accepted as "tragic but inevitable" the decision of Marshal Henri Petain of France to sue for peace.

Authorities said that the status of the French navy would be a question of major importance to Britain.

Elucidation of this point is being earnestly sought, it was said.

Meanwhile, certain reputable quarters expressed conviction that Germany's next move will be a peace offensive directed toward Great Britain and that such a move might conceivably be made through the United States.

The government set about preparing a formal statement to the world on the British attitude in face of the French decision.

In competent quarters, there was not the slightest attempt to blame the French for their stand. It was realized and agreed that the French put up the bravest sort of fight against terrible odds and only utter exhaustion compelled today's decisions.

There was the inevitable speculation over what might come next, but since the terms of any Franco-German agreement were not known, an expression of Britain's attitude had to await the convenience of Prime Minister Winston Churchill.

In view of Petain's recent contacts in Spain and reports that Generalissimo Francisco Franco would use his good offices in any Franco-German armistice negotiations, it was reported that the Spanish ambassador to France would act as intermediary.

(Editor's note: Bordeaux dispatches state that Jose Felix La Querica, the Spanish envoy, has already been named in this capacity.)

Terms of any armistice were not known in London up to 3 p. m. (9 a. m. EST.)

A Reliable Local Man Adds Praise For Vendol Medicine

Tells How It Relieved Dizzy Spells, Sour Gassy Stomach, and Other Troubles Due to Constipation. Advises Everyone To Try It.

MR. KIRK WOODS

"I had been bothered for years with constipation and this often made me feel dizzy, head ached, spots danced before my eyes, my tongue was coated, and every morning I'd awaken feeling tired, drowsy, and with a bad taste in my mouth," declared Mr. Kirk Woods of 78 Park Ave., Mansfield, reliable employee of the Purdy Construction Co., to the Vendol Man in Central Drug Drug Store.

"When I bent over it felt like blood would rush to my head and I'd have to steady myself for a few seconds. If I ate certain foods like fried potatoes, pies or raw apple, my stomach would soon be sour, fill up with gas and the 'heartburn' would be awful. Then when I'd go to bed I'd be restless and lie awake for hours.

"I was looking for a reliable medicine, so when so many leading citizens of our home town reported how Vendol helped them, I decided to try it and I'm so glad I did the first bottle did me a lot of good, so I kept it up.

"Vendol first relieved my constipation; then it seemed the other troubles grew less and less each day as I kept taking the Vendol, and now I'm feeling as well as in many a day. I've told a lot of people about Vendol because I know it will help them, too."

Every day Mansfield people are reporting excellent results from using Vendol. Troubles such as upset stomach, gas, sourness, itching head, bad, nervousness, poor appetite, backache, dizziness, spots before the eyes, and many others, when these troubles can be traced to constipation or need of a mild, gentle action on the kidneys. When you take Vendol it is like taking several medicines all rolled into one and at the cost of only one.

Give Vendol a chance to help you, too; it welcomes any test. Come to Central Drug Store, corner Main and Fourth Sts., ask for the special Vendol Representative known as the Vendol Man, and get all the facts without obligation. Most all leading druggists sell it. —Adv.

QUESTION: JUST WHAT ARE BEER AND ALE MADE OF?

ANSWER: Beer is made by a natural fermentation process... from malted barley and other grains, hops, yeast, water. Nature makes beer. The brewer makes it good beer (and ale).

QUESTION: HOW MUCH DO BEER TAXES CONTRIBUTE TO THE COST OF GOVERNMENT?

A "self-regulation" plan to eliminate retail abuses has already been put into effect in a number of states in cooperation with law enforcement authorities. This plan is being extended. We would like to tell you about it. Write for an interesting free booklet. Address: United Brewers Industrial Foundation, 19 East 40th Street, New York, N.Y.

Roosevelt Moves for Pan-American Economic Union

SOLID FRONT CROP EXPORT PLAN HINTED

Cabinet Members Work at Top Speed on Proposal Which Includes Canada.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON — President Roosevelt moved today to unite the 22 nations of the western hemisphere, including Canada, in a tight economic union the economic upheavels in the rest of the world.

Details of the move were not disclosed, but the White House revealed that Secretary of State Cordell Hull, Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace, Secretary of Treasury Henry Morgenthau, jr., and Secretary of Commerce Harry Hopkins are working at top speed on the plan.

The disclosure was the first White House reaction to the news that France was suing for peace with Germany.

It was learned authoritatively, although the White House would not comment, that the plan envisages an economic collaboration among the 21 American republics and perhaps Canada which would enable the major crops and surpluses of the western hemisphere to be sold and disposed of through a central medium.

The agreement, if approved, it was learned, might even take the form of a gigantic "cartel" — or monopoly—in which the 21 American republics and Canada would operate jointly to wield a maximum economic effect upon world economy.

Commodities to be affected by the plan appeared to be such important items as wheat, copper, cotton, meats, coffee and other commodities around which the Americas are building up great surpluses but which the war devastated economy of Europe shortly will be in urgent need of obtaining.

Organization of such a cartel, it appeared, would place the western hemisphere on the offensive in a world economy where totalitarian states appear to be gaining the upper hand and to be moving into a position where they can dictate the terms on which world trade will be conducted.

Ethel said he suspected the youth when he discovered that the money, hidden in a stairway, was missing. He told the officers he had loaned his automobile to the boy Saturday night and that keps to the office were on the key ring.

Officers said the boy admitted the theft and said he spent about $4 at a carnival Saturday night.

5,000 ATTEND MOHICAN PARK PICNIC SUNDAY

Sportsmen From All Parts of State Participate In Pilgrimage.

ASHLAND — An estimated 5,000 persons were on hand at the Mohican State park south of Loudonville Sunday, in the first pilgrimage of its kind ever sponsored.

Picnickers from Ashland county, from several surrounding counties and from points all over Ohio accepted the invitation of the League of Ohio Sportsmen and the Ashland County Wild Life Conservation league to visit the park, and then help to promote it, so that its benefits will not be lost.

Every speaker heard in the afternoon, including Mud Gardner, state president of the American Legion; O. A. Alderman of Wooster, state forester; M. V Loudenbeck of Sidney, president of the League of Ohio Sportsmen, Bryce Browning, secretary of the Muskingum watershed conservancy district, George Troutman, president of the conservation and natural resources commission, George Emmet, state lecturer on conservation and Don Ebright, state treasurer, urged the people present to help insure the future of the park.

Gardner said the American Legion favors keeping the CCC camp there, so the wonderful work of conservation can continue. Alderman said that the state must secure more of the privately owned land so that the conservation program can be enlarged, and the scope of recreational facilities expanded to included camps, bridle paths, fishing streams, etc.

Loudenbeck said that the League of Ohio Sporstmen is interested because to conserve the resources of park would mean fish and game facilities for sportsmen.

Browning declared that the park project should be taken to heart by everyone, as a means of conserving the American soil, which he said has been depleted by unwise cultivation.

Others were enthusiastic in the praise of the conservation work being done by the Civilian Conservation corps, and pledged their support to seeing that the Mohican Camp Post is maintained.

The pilgrimage to the park was preceded by a program which began in Ashland Saturday afternoon, with a radio broadcast by Trent Sickels of Columbus, secretary of the League of Ohio Sportsmen.

Saturday evening, there was a dinner at the Hotel Otter here for the sportsmen and the Outdoor Writers, and at 7 p. m., there was a regional meeting of the executive committee of the League of Ohio Sportsmen, with a reception held later at the Ashland Country club for outdoor writers.

Sunday morning, a caravan of several buses and private automobiles began the pilgrimage proper from Ashland, bound for the park in the southern part of the county, but stopping en route, at scenes of historic interest in the history of the county.

An ox roast, provided by the Chamber of Commerce of the Villages of Loudonville and Perrysville was provided free to all who came at noon, and after the dinner, the speaking program began.

The meeting was begun with the invocation, given by Rev. H. H. Creager of Millersburg, after which Floyd McClure, president of the Loudonville Chamber of Commerce introduced W. L. Rybolt, who presided for the afternoon. He in turn introduced special guests, and gave special mention to Bent Donley of Ashland, chairman of the committee which planned the program.

He Wins Yo-Yo Trophy

Leon Goettinger, 564 E. Goettinger is shown above holding the winner's cup that was presented to him by Roger's Jewelry company and the Park theater. Each of the contestants were presented with sweaters similar to the one Goettinger wears. The sweaters were presented by Lawrence Cook, representative of the Duncan Yo-Yo company, who conducted the contest.

HURT IN FALL

Woman Fractures Leg in 15-Foot Drop Down Elevator.

Mrs. Agnes Cerdinski, 42, an employe at the Walpark building was seriously injured early today when she stepped from the first floor lobby into the elevator shaft and dropped 15 feet to the basement.

Rescued by firemen from company No. 1 who were summoned by police, she was taken to General hospital. Physicians said she suffered a fractured leg and head injuries.

Officers, called by a passerby who was attracted by Mrs. Cerdinski's cries for help, said the accident occured shortly before 7 a. m. while she was working in the building.

They said they were told that Mrs. Cerdinski had opened the elevator door, believing that the car was on the floor. She said she stepped in to turn on the light and lost her balance. The elevator, they said, was several floors above.

RAIN DUE

Skies which have threatened rain since Sunday afternoon will make good their threat tonight and Tuesday, the weatherman said today.

There will be local thundershowers over most of the state with little change in temperature, the forecast said.

Mansfielders enjoyed cooler weather yesterday, but the mercury started to climb again today and the reading at noon was 76. Average reading for the past 24 hours was about normal at 69 degrees.

HELD IN JAIL

Alleged Check Forger Arrested In Dayton.

Returned from Dayton, Donald Brandt, Mansfield, was held in the city jail today on a charge of forging the name of Assistant Prosecutor Harold Lutz to two checks for a total of $50.

Brandt, who had been sought for more than a month, was arrested by Dayton police. He was brought back to Mansfield by City Detectives Lee Remy and Oscar Krupp.

The assistant prosecutor's name was signed, apparently in a woman's handwriting, and beneath the signature a girl's name was typed, presumably to make it appear that Lutz' secretary had written the check. The name, however was fictitious. Both checks were cashed at Mansfield stores.

Head of Ohio Real Estate Association Speaks Here

John W. Galbreath, Columbus, president of the Ohio Real Estate association, addressed members of the Mansfield Real Estate board at their luncheon meeting this noon at the Evergreens.

Asserting that the federal housing authority "has not accomplished the purpose for which it was intended," Galbreath said the National Real Estate board would propose a plan which would afford government aid for private enterprises in building homes for low-income families.

"Under the present program, a family has to have an income of $100 a month to get FHA funds and such a plan cannot help the man with little earning capacity who provides the biggest problem," he said.

He added that families who do not need federal aid are moving from privately-owned homes into the new federal housing communities, creating a problem for real estate owners in some cities.

Galbreath was accompanied by Willard M. Ewing, secretary of the state organization.

Plans were made for Mansfield realtors to attend the 31st annual meeting of the state association which will be held July 8-10 in Columbus.

JOHN W. GALBREATH

On July 8, Newton C. Farr, of Chicago, Ill., president of the National Real Estate board will address a meeting of the Mansfield board at the Mansfield-Leland hotel.

Congress Should Stay In Session

WITH France finally compelled to capitulate, after making a valiant fight against great odds, and with the United States pledged by President Roosevelt to fullest possible support of the Allied cause, the position of this country has been made even more hazardous by the occurrences of the past few hours.

The full burden of carrying on the war now devolves upon Great Britain and it is the expressed determination of that nation to go forward with the same determination that has been shown from the beginning of hostilities, despite the calamity that has befallen France.

However universal may be the sympathies of the American people toward Great Britain and France in the war now being fought against Germany and Italy, there has been no approval of an idea that President Roosevelt should be vested with authority to plunge the United States into that conflict.

The Constitution gives congress sole power to declare war, but a chief executive, so disposed, is in position to make dangerous approach to such a declaration, as was done by Mr. Roosevelt during the course of his Charlotteville, Va., speech last Monday.

It had been the fond hope of a vast majority of Americans, up to a short time ago, that this country could maintain at least such semblance of neutrality as would prevent later necessity for involvement in European affairs—but President Roosevelt has been making this increasingly difficult, and if he is not soon checked by statesmen of sounder judgment, may quickly make commitments which will hurry the United States into a war for which it is almost entirely unprepared.

What has been termed the "emotionally impulsive oratory" of President Roosevelt may be excused when devoted to presenting his concept of social reforms and other internal problems, but can scarcely be trusted to express the attitude of this nation in the matter of getting into war.

Adjournment of congress by the end of this week has been urged by New Deal leaders, apparently with the approval of President Roosevelt, but with the European situation as it now is, and as it is likely to become further complicated within the next few weeks, it seems important that congressmen should stay on the job, through the entire summer, if necessary, instead of leaving one man in charge.

It can be understood that some of the politically-minded congressmen may regard the party conventions and the oncoming presidential campaign as of more immediate importance than the international situation.

But with events occurring as rapidly as they have been in Europe, including the "impossible" fall of Paris, followed by the crushing of French resistance, it cannot be foretold what action may be necessary by the United States in the immediate future.

It is the obvious duty of congress to remain in session during the present crisis, so as to be in instant readiness to perform the duties placed upon it by the Constitution. Any other course would be serious neglect of the nation's vital interests.

Profits for Givers

THERE are more than the usual number of appeals this summer for philanthropic citizens to share their resources with the unfortunte, but nearly all of them can be justified on practical as well as humanitarian grounds. Whatever we give outright for relief of war refugees will bring dividends far beyond the original outlay if it helps to preserve courage and decency and civilized morale in the world.

So, too, with many of our routine, domestic philanthropies. Fresh air funds, used to take poor and ill-fed children from hot and crowded cities to camps or farms, also pay dividends. It is hard to compute these dividends, but if it could be done they would doubtless show good citizens made, crime prevented, health improved.

Revolving Berry Patch

A REVOLVING strawberry patch is the invention of John R. Hopper of Paris, Ill. He put a 60-gallon vinegar barrel on an old wagon wheel with the hub of the wheel projecting through the bottom of the barrel. He drilled one-inch holes about eight inchs apart all around the barrel.

Black, mixed loam was put into the barrel up to the first row of holes. The roots of strawberry plants were then set through the holes, with the stems and leaves sticking out. After the roots were stretched out behind the holes another layer of the earth was added. So it went, up to every row of holes and finally to the top of the barrel. A column of sand was put in the center in a stove pipe, which was pulled out after the barrel was planted. The sand was topped by a syrup pail, with holes punched in the bottom and with the loam piled up around its sides. Pail and sand provided the watering system.

Such a barrel may be turned slowly to get light all the way around. The plants thrive and produce fine berries. Mr. Hopper planted five of these barrels and reported a steady crop all through the summer and into the fall.

Those Whistling Dentures

SYMPATHY from many people goes out to Ned Sparks, film and radio comedian, for his special type of income tax trouble. In filing his tax returns, Ned deducted $3,000 as "business expense," the same being what it had cost him for expensive dentures to prevent "whistling and hissing through his teeth" into the microphone.

It seems too bad that he can't get away with it. If the claim were allowed, it would make things easier for some other involuntary whistlers and hissers, and give the dentists a lot of profitable work. But rules are rules, and probably the treasury department, while aiming to be just, isn't especially interested in making people happy.

Oddity: An article in the current issue of Photoplay tells about the home life of Joan Fontaine (Mrs. Brian Aherne). The writer says: "She spread out her hands and there was no red polish on her nails. She gave up red polish before she married. Brian abhors it."

Back in the horse and buggy days the common expression was: "Money makes the mare go," but it takes the New Dealers to make the money go.

The Wisconsin supreme court has ruled that the state may abolish as well as create public jobs—but whoever thought of doing such a thing?

Now that Father's day has passed, nothing much remains but to get ready for a safe and sane Fourth of July.

Opportunity seldom interrupts a clock-watcher.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—The Players Club of New York has put on a revival of the Congreve comedy, "Love for Love," that first was produced in London in 1695. But the dramatic aspects of this revival are not to be found in the comedy itself, which simply is a robustly cheerful and bawdy piece of Restoration play writing. They are to be found in the singular and ironic parallel of figures and circumstances that face Whitehall today.

This play's premiere took place during the reign of William and Mary. Seven years earlier Britain had been invaded from those same Dutch channel ports the Nazis hold today. This invasion was led by William of Orange, who was Mary's husband. Mary was the daughter of James II, against whom the people revolted.

Most of the fighting took place on Irish soil, and at the Battle of Boyne the Stuart adherents were defeated decisively. Their leaders then took refuge in France, and this, for all practical purposes, was the end of their dreams of restoration.

WHAT makes this such a dramatic page in history to study and ruminate on is this: the leader of the successful British forces was a man named John Churchill, who became the Duke of Marlborough, ancestor of Winston Churchill, Britain's great wartime prime minister.

It should be pointed out that the revival of this play was more of a family affair than a public event, for the aristocratic old Players club is an institution in New York that puts on its plays only once a year, and then only for a week. "Love for Love," therefore, is only a memory. No manager could pay the salaries demanded for a commercial engagement with such a cast. Originally the Players began with the Booths and the Drews back in the 80's. Today the club includes famous writers and authors as well as the distinguished names of the theater. Two hundred and fifty years ago the Players hadn't yet been invented. But a man named Congreve had written a play, and a man named Churchill was wielding a sword in defense of England during her hour of need. Today Congreve's old comedy is something for New Yorkers to giggle over, while 3,000 miles away another man named Churchill is wielding a sword in defense of an empire that sorely needs him.

OSCAR SERLIN, in his elation over the good luck "Life With Father" has enjoyed, has published a very fancy album for his newspaper and theatrical friends, each with the name of the recipient embossed in gold on the front. It is a handsome piece of work, profusely illustrated and carrying a fund of interesting information about the players, authors, the famous old Empire theater at 40th street and Broadway, and something, too, of the real father, Clarence Day, whose life inspired the play. Serlin loves the play, he says, because it "celebrates an era when life was peaceful and gracious, and the future secure."

This phase, "and the future secure," no doubt comes from Serlin's heart; he was born in Yalowka, Poland, and Poland, as we have seen, has been anything but secure.

BLOCKING THE MAIN ROAD

Knudsen to Decide on Methods

—By CARTER FIELD

WASHINGTON — William S. Knudsen will run his show or get out, in the judgment of friends who have watched his career for many years. Furthermore, they think President Roosevelt knew this when he appointed the president of General Motors, and that the appointment, therefore, means that Roosevelt intends to let nothing interefer with the defense—and incidentally the "aid the Allies"—program.

New Deal lieutenants are apt to prove troublesome—IF they are allowed by the president to inject their ideas. The theory at the moment is that despite the president's determination not to let the emergency interfere with "social gains" made in his administration, he is also determined that NOTHING must be allowed to interfere with the defense program.

The New Dealers, however, are saying that as the job of organizing industry for armament production has been put into the hands of business, under its own bosses, then industry also must assume the responsibility.

Roosevelt is emphatic in asserting that his "extra-cabinet" commission will have every necessary power to get production. But if the machinery for carrying the double burden of supplying the present and potential needs of domestic defense and of the Allies fails to click, industry must be prepared to see the New Deal take over and order industry what to do, according to its own notions, with all the implications which that carries for deliberate socialization of industry, as a political doctrine.

EVEN in the hands of Knudsen, Edward R. Stettinius, jr., Sidney Hillman, et al., some regimentation of certain industries is unavoidable if the job is to be done. The difference lies in attitude and ultimate objective. The advisory National Defense Commission will do as little of it as possible, but the New Dealers will be looking for the opportunity. Incidentally, it is interesting that the present proposed regime for the control of the armament industry came out inch by inch over a period of ten days, during which the real function and authority of the defense commission was very difficult to ascertain.

It is interesting in this connection to note that Thomas E. Dewey's intention to attack the White House for NOT having set up such a commission was known to the president for some time before the Dewey speech was sent out for release to the newspapers. Dewey had to twist his speech around because of the naming of the commission BETWEEN the date when the speech was sent out and the time for its delivery.

But all that is just political froth on the concoction, in this writer's humble opinion, for this writer believes that Roosevelt is more concerned about the war than about ANYTHING else—that everything else has now been relegated to a secondary role, and that certain extreme radicals high in administration circles are going to run up against trouble by underestimating the president's determination to put defense and aid to the Allies first—social reforms second.

* * *

A PATTERN is developing which, susceptible to infinite expansion, is already broader than anything required for our present four-and-a-half-billion-dollar program. The admitted objective is to organize American industry to supply the Allies. So far only two industries are directly involved—aircraft and machine tools.

This program will be extended to include other industries as the need develops or becomes more obvious. Meanwhile expansion of these two is the imperative requirement of the government.

Health and Diet

Good Time For Vaccinations.

—By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Is it safe to vaccinate children in the summer?

Yes. In fact, summer is a very good time to catch up on immunizations if they have not been done before. Some physicians prefer to vaccinate against smallpox in the spring or autumn but there does not seem to be any scientific reason advanced why or how hot weather affects a vaccination unfavorably. Perhaps a little more precaution about infection of the vaccination wound is required in the summer on account of the possibility of sweat infecting it or the more moist condition of the skin predisposing the maceration and sloughing, but these are easy to overcome.

One other precaution is for the doctor to remember—smallpox vaccine dies readily in very hot weather and if the stock it not kept in refrigeration the vaccination will not "take." But vaccine virus is so regularly kept refrigerated that this reminder seems hardly necessary.

If for some reason a child has not been vaccinated against diphtheria, whooping cough, typhoid fever and smallpox before entering school, the first vacation period is an excellent time to remedy this.

If camp activity is planned, it should be remembered that the child who is being immunized may be deprived of swimming or playing in the sand for a week or two after any vaccination, but this, again, is an easy matter of adjustment.

Essentially—that is, scientifically—there is no reason why vaccination should not be done in the summer.

Is Vitamin B useful in neuralgia as well as neuritis?

We haven't very many reports on the use of Vitamin B in the painful form of neuritis, generally called "neuralgia." Its usefulness has been demonstrated when the nerves are involved on the muscular side causing paralysis, but when on the sensory side, causing pain, Vitamin B does not seem to work quite so well.

In a great many of the late reports on the usefulness of vitamins, it seems to me evident that the action of the vitamin is like that of a drug rather than a replacement factor. In other words, it could not be said that the Vitamin B in these cases of neuralgia was absent from the diet, and that this absence caused the neuralgia; rather that thiamin chloride, which is concentrated Vitamin B1, acts in neuralgia as a drug and must be given by the physician in larger quantities than would ordinarily be taken in the food.

Parking Meters Gain Favor.

Akron takes a leaf from the book of experience of more than 150 other cities and will set up 800 parking meters for a trial period.

Parking meters frequently encounter opposition at the outset, but the considered opinion of business interests, motorists and city authorities usually is in favor of their retention. The meters produce some revenue for hard pressed cities but—and this is more important—they prevent the monopolization of convenient parking places in shopping districts. The shopper who comes down town finds a 20-feet space at the curb to park his car for 30, 60 or 90 minutes for a nickel, instead of walking a good many blocks or patronizing a parking lot.

There is no one traffic problem in any large city. Traffic is a series of problems. As conditions change, as large new building are put up, as new schools and other places of public assembly are located, new solutions must be worked out on two bases—public safety and public convenience—with account taken of the effect of new traffic rules on property values and business — Toledo Blade.

WASHINGTON Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—On June 25, Clarence E. Gauss sails for Australia. This is more than a routine foreign service shift. It means the United States is sending its first minister to Australia in diplomatic history, at a time when relations between the two countries take on a new significance.

If the Germans cut the umbilical cord between London and Canberra, the United States will be drawn closer to Australia in the common cause of defending the Pacific.

Gauss is the man who sat on the hot spot in Shanghai, as consul general and also counselor of embassy, during the Japanese invasion and subsequent conflicts. Australia's great fear is Japan, and he knows the country intimately.

Gauss is a diplomat who never wore spats, nor flaunted a college diploma. He quit school at 16 to become a court reporter, took testimony at congressional hearings. After he joined the state department he studied nights to make up for lost schooling.

* * *

U. S. Pacifists.

ONCE when in Washington on leave, Gauss was in the office of the secretary of state when a late newspaper came to Mr. Hull's desk, bearing the banner headline: "U. S. DEFIES JAPAN."

This was at the height of the Chinese-Japanese war, through the maze of which the United States was steering a difficult course. So when Mr. Hull saw the headline, he blew up.

He exclaimed that the administration had been trying to soft-pedal that kind of news for two years, as a concession to the strong pacifist elements in the country. If the state department should give them the slightest excuse by showing its intention to play a strong hand in the Orient, he pointed out, they would holler about the administration dragging them into war.

Behind the scenes, however, he said that the administration had been working to prepare public opinion for the time when it could bring its two-fisted diplomacy out in the open. When that time came, it wanted its policy backed by public opinion, and also by a strong navy in the Pacific.

With the departure of Clarence Gauss as first U. S. minister to Australia, Mr. Hull's advisers believe that time has now come.

Note—Gauss is taking with him John Minter, state department's able expert on Australian affairs. By special action of congress Minter was transferred to the foreign service in order to be first secretary of the new legation.

Lot of Old Women.

SENATOR HATTIE CARAWAY never issues statements and rarely "saws air" on the senate floor. But those who know the quiet little lady from Arkansas appreciate that behind her demure exterior is one of the most pungent wits in congress.

She demonstrated this the other day when several colleagues congratulated her on becoming a grandmother.

"Thank you," replied Mrs. Caraway, "I am now the first and only grandmother in the senate." And then with a mischievous smile she added, "But there are some others who act that way."

* * *

NLRB Amendments.

PASSAGE by the house of the Smith amendments scuttling the National Labor Relations Board was a sham battle. The bill hasn't any more chance of getting through the senate than a snowball in Death Valley.

If the house had passed the moderate amendments sponsored by Mrs. Mary Norton, chairman of the labor committee, there would have been a fair likelihood of the senate labor committee considering them. But the drastic Smith bill is poison to a majority of this committee—which is among the most liberal on Capitol Hill.

Also playing an important role in the committee's hostility was AFL President Green's somersault on the amendments. When introduced in March, he scathingly denounced them as a "destructive blow at vital fundamental principles." But in the midst of the house fight he reversed himself and came out for the amendments if revised in a few minor details.

Green's standing with the senate committee never was weighty, and his maneuver on the Smith bill didn't help. Privately, committee members expressed indignation at his flip-flop.

Merry-Go-Round.

ONE reason why Mussolini struck at the time he did was the strategy of cutting off French retreat to Africa. If the French army could cross the Mediterranean and established themselves in Algiers and Tunis, it would be difficult to dislodge them. This would upset Il Duce's dreams of African empire. . . . Remarked usually kindly Joseph T. Tumulty on the night Italy declared war: "From now on Italy's national emblem will be a vulture—the bird which attacks when its prey cannot strike back." . . . Through utility friends in Alabama, where he has large power interests, Wendell Willkie is making vigorous undercover efforts to grab off Dewey delegates.

Nazi Propaganda.

FEDERAL authorities are saying nothing about it, but they suspect German consuls as the secret source of much Nazi propaganda in this country. A number of consulates are under close surveillance and there shortly may be some forced expulsions.

Samples of this propaganda have been forwarded to the FBI and postal inspectors from indignant citizens in all parts of the country. Two striking things about it are that obviously it stems from a common source, also that it is both anti-Ally and pacifistic.

Judging from the scale on which propaganda is being conducted, obviously it is costing a lot of money. Practically all of the literature is sent in typed envelopes under 3-cent postage.

One example is a piece of literature widely mailed from St. Louis. Printed on a long sheet of paper, of a size not generally used in this country, the article is headed "It is NOT my war!" It caustically assails France and England and winds up by demanding that "America mind her own business and keep her powder dry."

"Let her apply the Monroe Doctrine both ways," this anonymous letter declares, "and tell the world, especially Canada, that any people that expects to enjoy the protection of that doctrine against the consequences of European war must stay out of European wars; and let us gird our loins and prepare for the day when we shall have to fight Japan in one ocean and England in the other."

Along the Pond

(A FARMER'S DIARY)

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

I WAS WORKING in the garden. The sun was hot and I did not mind heeding the call of two childish, high pitched voices, down by the pond. "Come here, Daddy—right now!"

The younger boys had caught two toads and were trying out their ability to swim by pitching them into the middle of the pond. The larger toad swam well—its head above the swell of a wave moved gracefully along. He came to the riffles and the boy recaught him and came up along the grassy bank to show me, when suddenly the boy saw the thick body of a blacksnake with a large triangular head, asleep near the path. He recognized the snake as the one which had attacked King Cole, the goldfish, one day last week and held him by his back until Sister drove him off with the hoe. The little boy became much excited.

"Daddy, grab your hoe and come—run, Daddy! That old snake is by the lilac bush! We won't miss him this time!"

I grasped the instrument of death and hurried to the spot, but like magic, the reptile had disappeared. We hunted for some time. A frog croaked with a peculiar nervous sound. I heard it five different times, quite near at hand. Cautiously I drew a tall bunch of grass away from where it seemed to be but the green and darker blotches of its body blended with the rocks and foliage so well that I looked for a full half minute directly at it before the head, the dull eyes, the body became clearly outlined.

The frog stood straight, head high and did not move even when I placed my fingers an inch from where he stood. I saw his forelegs pull vainly against a small stone in front, but something held him back. I pulled the tall grass apart and there concealed about the wet roots, the snake had hidden. The large triangular head was a half inch beyond the clump of stems and in its mouth, firmly held, were the two rear legs of the frog. His weak forelegs were no match for the reptile's strength and very soon I knew, and I believe the frog did too, that his entire body would be engulfed by the monster. His eyes showed agony as he looked at me.

I grasped the hoe firmly in both hands and struck the aggressor heavily. I broke his back. The frog gave a single leap and disappeared into the pond.

CHAPTER III

And in the same instant she realized that she was in the strangest situation she had ever known. Not for a million dollars cash could she have imagined changing clothes in a car with a strange man on a mountainside in Arizona at midnight—if somebody had suggested it a month ago! But—she had absolutely no fear of Archibald Montgomery. Somehow she had intuitively taken him at face value, knowing him to be just what he said he was. He positively exudes honesty, she told herself.

He strained to keep as far from her as possible during that embarrassing interval, tootling the horn in long blasts and in short staccato ones. He kept his face almost desperately toward the front, although Rosemary had snapped off the light and left them in virtual darkness. The headlights had remained on, though. They made a misty aura out front, a more than hazy reflected glow inside.

"It's taking longer than I imagined," she apologized "But I decided I might as well do a thorough job. I wish I had some dry things to offer you but all I have is feminine."

"It's quite all right," he declared.

He tootled for a full five minutes more, although neither of them had even a remote hope of getting results. For one thing, nobody lived in these wild western mountains, they had observed. The old man at the tiny filling station back there was a hermit beside the highway. And this was a stormy, rainy, cloudy, foggy night. They hadn't passed or seen another car since Rosemary rescued her professor from the stream.

But, even so, the horn toothing was comforting, Rosemary was thinking. She was wriggling now into a dry petticoat preparatory to donning a dry dress, when the miracle happened!

Tap-tap-tap—"Hey, what is it!"

Somebody was rapping on her window and shouting from outside!

"EE-e-e-e-e-e!"

Rosemary almost upset Dr. Montgomery, jumping aside It was the second time that day she had screamed in sudden fear, and also the second time in perhaps ten years. Her life hadn't held any excitement of this sort in New York City. "Adventure" back home had consisted of work and more work, and occasional dancing and night-clubing and more rarely a vacation at the seashore with perhaps just a little romancing thrown in. Her most exciting moment in the two past years—until today—had been provided by a wealthy client of the firm who had tried to make love to her, and turned out to be married already. Oh, yes, and that time she had been in a subway wreck. But she had been bored with that, and impatient at the half-hour delay in getting downtown. This first day and night in Arizona, however, was—goodness!

Dr. Montgomery stopped tootling the horn instantly. The voice outside the sedan shouted again.

"Who is it? Are you in trouble?"

The questions were punctuated by the sudden beam from a flashlight, pressed against the car glass. Rosemary was still in partial undress, but at least she was covered.

"No! Yes!" she yelled back at the voice, a man's. "I mean—yes! No—wait a minute! I—"

She was incoherent from surprise as well as from her wriggling frantically into a last garment.

"Oh, I say—!" Dr. Montgomery came to life now. "Who is there? Who—wait, I shall open the door!"

The young professor opened the sedan door and stared out with considerable apprehension, then left his seat.

"I'm Bob King, a United States Forest Ranger," the voice said. "Heard your horn and—whoa, boy!—I'm on a horse, wait a second!"

He dismounted, turning the flashlight on himself and on the head of his animal.

"A policeman!" Rosemary gasped happily, from inside the sedan. "O-o-h, you look like an angel!"

"I'm neither a policeman nor an angel, madam!" the ranger stated, emphatically. "A forest ranger tries to avoid either extreme. What's the trouble here?"

"We stalled, officer—ranger, Mr. Ranger, I mean—gee golly! Say it's great to see you in a uniform and all. I don't care who you are! We were scared silly, as a matter of fact."

"Car dead?"

"Dead is right, and—"

"Plenty of gas?"

"Sure! Filled up down there at old pop's, whoever he is, and—"

"Been splashing through this confounded cloud, no doubt. Well, let's have a look. New York, eh? Say, you're away off your reservation, folks!"

He had a cheery manner and Rosemary thought him heavenly and told him so again. He grinned and again denied it, while lifting the hood of the car.

"But if you were desperate, I'm really glad I did hear you. I was holed in down yonder a ways." He indicated a direction off the road.

"Holed in?" The professor queried this.

"Yes sir. Camped, I mean. Emergency tent."

"Oh," said Rosemary.

"Just as I guessed," the ranger went on. "You're shorted out. This floating lake! Give me a dry rag, if you've got such a thing. Why didn't you or your husband look at the ignition yourself?"

Neither Rosemary nor Monty answered for a long moment.

"Is it anything like the carburetor?" she finally queried, seriously.

The ranger laughed. "Never mind!" he said. "Women are women, all over the world. Here, I'll use my handkerchief. It's been under my raincoat all day."

He wiped and chatted sociably while about it, poking around with his flashlight too.

"Now get in and step on her," he ordered. "Go easy on the choke."

* * *

The car started with considerable sput-sput noises, moved to four cylinders, five, and finally began firing on all six.

"She'll be okay when she warms up, and if she stops again get out and wipe off the electrical wiring and dry the distributor—this gadget there, see?"

Dr. Montgomery took the instructions with deep gravity.

"Thank you, sir!" he spoke with feeling. "Thank you, indeed!"

"Don't mention it. But you better stop in Flagstaff and get a new set of wires there. The insulation's burned off. You'll be having trouble all along, mister, if you don't."

"Thank you again. I shall inform Miss Taylor."

"Who?"

"Miss Taylor—the lady there."

"Well—" The ranger turned to eye the other man, curiously, thinking doubtless of the oddness of the situation in which he had found them.

Rosemary took that moment also to appraise the newcomer. He was a man slightly larger than Montgomery, and strikingly trim and neat in his military-looking ranger's uniform. In spite of the wetness everywhere, his hat and his coat seemed in perfect condition, save for spots of water on the hat. He had a ruddy face, a bright directness of manner, a muscular build. And he was a very young man, she knew. He had said his name was Bob King.

"We'll never be able to repay you, Mr. King," she called.

"Mail me a check for a thousand dollars," he answered, grinning amiably. "Do you folks want to come to my tent for the night, or go on down the highway now?"

"Oh. I—I"

"The fog like this is just a mountaintop cloud. You'll soon be over the hump yonder and start down again. The fog'll clear then in another half mile, if you can crawl through it that far. But I'd be tickled to have company. We could sleep in relays and tell yarns all night. I have a fire and some emergency grub."

"You're a darling," she informed him, "but—"

"A bit ago I was an angel."

"So you are still!" She laughed heartily with him, and even Dr. Montgomery smiled his gratitude again. "But what I mean you've been a real help and we'd like to stay. I suppose we'd best push on, however. Dr. Montgomery here had a ducking, and he needs dry clothes. He's virtually an icicle now."

* * *

Bob King mounted his horse and escorted them through the remainder of the cloud. With his flashlight as a faint guide ahead, Rosemary could move the car in low gear without danger. About three hundred yards brought them over the mountain rim and they started down, and after a bit the night air cleared of fog as Bob King had predicted. They thanked him again and drove on.

When they had rolled out of sight down the winding mountain slope, Bob leaned on his saddle horn and stared down the motor trail for a long minute or two.

"Gloree-e-e-e-e-e! he finally murmured, from some inner enthusiasm.

Then he turned his horse and rode back through the forest. A dude or other stranger would have said he moved blindly, trusting solely to chance, but both he and the horse were at ease. They moved directly to his tent—really a combined tent and brush lean-to—which offered singular comfort in this wet mountain night. He stirred up the fire that glowed cheerily there, staked out his horse, warmed up a pot of coffee. He sat there more than an hour past what should have been a bedtime, just thinking. Then he rolled in some blankets and went at once to sleep.

Next dawn found Ranger Robert King astir.

He had breakfast before the mountains were clear of fog, and by 7 a. m. he was singing lustily to keep himself company, his horse stepping lively through dew-gemmed grass and trees.

Before 8 he had come to the field cabin that housed his car beside a branch road. And he also had come to a carefully thought out conclusion. Boyhke, he had concocted a perfectly legitimate excuse for driving this day into Flagstaff, subdivisional headquarters for the forest service in this area. He hadn't meant to go to town for another three or four days, but it wasn't hard to think up an errand and appease his conscience with it.

At a quarter of 9 he entered Buck's garage in Flagstaff and looked around. At 9 o'clock he was entering the City garage service department. At 9:10 he was walking tentatively into the barnlike rear of the Western States Motor Repair. At 9:20 he was entering a place on the main street bearing a sign: "Tourist Service."

As he had done in the other garages, he ambled sociably around, inspecting license plates and cars, and then all at once he spotted something near a rear window. The something was the lower half of a very shapely girl, protruding more or less from under the hood of a car with New York plates. Ranger King paused and smiled, then walked over to the car.

"Everything okay this morning?" he boomed.

Informally Speaking...

By MARIANNE

June 17, 1940.

Lucy, dear:

THE skies above are none too bright, so it looks very much as though we might expect another day of rain—a none too happy outlook, considering all the rainy days we've had so far this month. . . . Some of us have been keeping track just for fun, and it's already rained nine of the past 16 days—a fact which certainly should cut the time and expense of sprinkling flower gardens and lawns.

Most exciting news of the day comes from Buffalo, N. Y., where a former Mansfielder was married yesterday. . . . Robert K. Fisher, son of Mr. and Mrs. William F. Fisher, took Mary Kirby Atwood of that eastern city for his bride. . . . Bob, you know is employed by the Swift Packing company in Chicago, Ill., and his wife is a medical social worker at the University of Chicago clinic. . . . They drove here from Chicago Friday and Mrs. Fisher went to Buffalo with them for the wedding. . . . After a motor trip through Canada, the couple will reside in Chicago.

* * * * *

This past week-end was an important one in the H. D. Lowrey family. . . . Mr. and Mrs. Lowrey went up to Ann Arbor, Mich., Saturday to see their son, Harrison, graduate from the University of Michigan. . . . Harrison (who was graduated from Mansfield Senior high school in 1936) has established an enviable record at the university. . . . During his junior year, he served as associate editor of "Fraternities" and filled the same capacity on the university year book. . . . He was elected to membership in the senior society, Druids—for which his proficiency as an amateur magician fitted him somewhat. . . . A member of Beta Theta Pi fraternity, he was vice president and rushing chairman for the group this year, and his name was placed on the fraternity's honor cup for 1939-40—and this is indeed an honor, as only one member is so elected each year. . . . Harrison received his A. B. degree Saturday, and he will enter the university medical school next September. . . . This summer Harrison and his grandfather, J. E. LaDow, are planning to take a trip through Kentucky—visiting Mammoth cave and Lincoln's birthplace.

* * * * *

RAYMOND HAINER, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Hainer, is graduating from Wooster college today "with distinction"—an honor granted only to the 20 per cent of the senior class with the best scholastic record for the four-year course. . . . Raymond also received the William Z. Bennett $50 prize in chemistry—an award which is given to the student with the highest standing in chemistry. . . . And that's not all, Lucy. Raymond was one of 19 seniors elected to Phi Beta Kappa on the basis of excellent scholastic records—this being the oldest known society for the recognition of high scholarship.

* * * * *

Marian Cope has gone to Allentown, Pa. for a vacation. . . . She went by plane and she also will visit with her uncle and aunt, Dr. and Mrs. Francis G. Cope, in Reigelsville, Pa. . . . Before returning home, she will go to see her cousins, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Miller, in Nazareth, Pa. . . . Other eastern vacationers are Mr. and Mrs. G. W. DeYarmon and Mrs. J. A. Yoder, who were sightseeing in New York City last week. . . . Mr. and Mrs. W. Barney Ford are in Minneapolis, Minn. as representatives of the Mansfield Kiwanis club at the international convention of the organization, which opened in that city today.

* * * * *

Mrs. Victor P. Kevey is on her way to Hollywood, Cal., where she will visit with Mr. and Mrs. Milton Harris for the next six weeks. . . . Incidentally, Mr. Harris is publicity director for Jack Benny and several of the other stars. . . . Oh yes, Lucy, I mustn't forget to tell you that Harriet Johnston and Don Kirkpatrick both won third place awards in the music festival sponsored by a Cleveland paper in that city this past week-end.

IF YOU can come over for a visit this week, Lucy, please do, because I know you'll want to see Marianne Genet while she's here. . . . She arrived from Pittsburgh, Pa. last night and is visiting with Florence MacDonald. . . . Now a noted composer, Miss Genet, you recall, served as organist at St. Luke's Lutheran and the Grace Episcopal churches while a resident of our town.

* * * * *

THAT seems to call a halt to the news for today, Lucy, so write soon, and in the meantime, I'll be on the lookout for a visit from you.

Lovingly,

Marianne

Women's Church Groups Are Active During Warm Months

CHANGING seasons never in any way influence the activity of the various women's organizations of Mansfield churches. True it is that in the cold months they congregate close by the fire, quilt, give luncheons and teas, while when the thermometer soars they seek the coolness of gardens or parks, but the meetings go on with unsurpassed regularity.

Today both the Grace guild of the First Methodist church and the Central Methodist guild are planning picnics. The latter group will hold a family affair at South park with Mrs. Claude Ewing in charge.

Routine sessions will be held on Wednesday by both the Women's Missionary society of the United Presbyterian church and the St. John's guild. Miss Grace Courtney and Mrs. M. A. Eakin are hostesses for the first group, while Mrs. Ida Hunter, Miss Clara Yeager, Mrs. Ida Winters and Mrs. Agnes Wilson will entertain the guild.

The Second district of the First Lutheran church will have a knick-knack luncheon the same day, with Mrs. E. W. McCready on Marion avenue. The Women's guild of the First Presbyterian church selected Thursday for a mother-daughter banquet at the church, while the same day was chosen for meetings of all the circles of the First Methodist church. These sessions are announced in the schedule of events.

Members of the Star of Hope class will be entertained at the South Main street church the same day by Mrs. Sarah Smith, Mrs. Irene Bittinger, Mrs. Jessie Derringer, Mrs. Marjorie Weimer, Mrs. Doris Borden and Mrs. Doris Maglott.

ANNOUNCE MARRIAGE.

Jennie L. Ackerman, 79 Reba avenue, became the bride of Harvey D. Freehafer Saturday by Rev. Woodrow Faulkner, minister of the Evangelical church. The ceremony was performed at the home. Witnesses were Mr. and Mrs. Glen Bookwalter. Mr. Freehafer is an employe of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company. The couple is now at home at the Reba avenue address.

PERFORMS SERVICE ON FATHER'S DAY

Miss Virginia Mae Anderson, Howard Heston Wedded By Rev. David N. Roller At Family Home On Davis Road.

EVERY Father's day, O. P. Anderson gains a son-in-law. Last year his daughter, Helen, became Mrs. Edward L. Channell, and yesterday his daughter, Virginia Mae, was married to Howard Heston. Rev. David N. Roller, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, performed the ceremony at the Anderson family home, 629 Davis road, at 2:30 o'clock in the afternoon.

Preceding the exchange of vows, Mrs. Charles Heston, aunt of the bridegroom, presided at the piano, playing Mendelssohn's "Wedding March."

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was attired in a magnolia white street-length dress. A white orchid and lilies-of-the-valley formed her shoulder corsage. Mrs. Channell was her sister's matron-of-honor, and she wore an aqua jacket dress with white accessories and corsage of Talisman roses. The bride chose her other sister, Miss Bette Anderson, to be her bridesmaid. She complemented her maise jacket frock with white accessories and a corsage of Talisman roses.

Mr. Heston is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George C. Heston, 39 Mendota street. Russell C. Heston served as his brother's best man.

Mrs. Anderson appeared at her daughter's wedding wearing a dusky rose afternoon dress and shoulder corsage of pastel shaded roses. Mrs. Heston's dress was of an orchid tone, and she also wore a corsage of varied pastel roses.

An informal reception for friends and relatives was held at the Susie Janis home on the Park avenue west road at 3:30 o'clock. Later in the day, Mr. and Mrs. Heston left on a two-weeks trip through the New England states and Canada. For traveling, the former Miss Anderson topped her wedding dress with a matching redingote. She wore accessories of aqua and maise to match her attendants' dresses and lend a note of color to her costume.

Upon the completion of a new home, the couple will reside on Marlow road. The bride, who was graduated from Mansfield Senior high school, was a member of Alpha Delta Pi sorority while attending Ohio university. She has been a teacher at West Fifth street school and is a member of Delta Theta chapter of Delta Theta Tau sorority. Mr. Heston, a graduate of Mansfield Senior high school, is employed at the City Loan company.

HOW YOU CAN GET A $100 LOAN

IF YOU CAN PAY BACK $4.46 A MONTH

No endorsers or guarantors needed—No credit questions asked of friends or relatives—Quick, friendly service.

Do you want to get a loan quickly and simply? At Household Finance you can borrow $20 to $500 without endorsers or guarantors, if you can make regular monthly payments. From the table below you may choose the payment plan which fits your own purse. You may repay a small amount each month. Or you may make larger payments in order to pay up sooner.

Choose your own payment plan

Suppose that you need a $100 loan. You find this amount in the first column of the table. Then read across picking out the monthly payment which you wish to make. You will find, for instance, that monthly payments of $9.46 each will repay a $100 loan in full in twelve months. Or, if you wish smaller payments, as little as $4.46 a month for thirty months will also repay a $100 loan.

When you borrow at Household Finance, you pay charges only for the actual time you have the money. The sooner you repay, the less your loan costs. Four monthly installments of $26.26 each, or a total of only $105.04, for instance, will repay a $100 loan in full. (All payments shown in the table include the charges. You pay nothing more.)

One rate to everyone

Household charges only one rate—the same to everyone, whether new customer or former borrower.

All you do to borrow

All you do to get a Household Finance loan is to acquaint us with your problem. We require no salary or wage assignment, no stocks or bonds. (Loans are made on furniture, car or note.) No questions regarding your credit are asked of friends or relatives—and you don't have to ask friends or fellow-workers to sign the loan papers with you. You get the money you need in a simple, private transaction.

Fair Treatment

Household shows every consideration to the borrower faced with sickness or unemployment while paying on a loan. Last year Household foreclosed on only one chattel mortgage for each 10,000 loans—an action taken then only as protection against fraud.

Find the loan you need in the first column of the table and read across. See how you can repay your loan with a small part of your pay check. Then phone or visit us. You will be under no obligation to borrow.

Garden Wedding Economical

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

We still have our little superstitions—breaking mirrors, Friday the 13th, and May weddings—but May is now well past, and from Maine to California marriage license bureaus have been doing a land-office business. All over the country we have our annual rush of June weddings.

June is bride's month. In answer to innumerable inquiries addressed to this column concerning indoor and outdoor weddings, please let me say that an outdoor wedidng, if it can be managed, is always lovely.

A wedding in a garden with flowers actually blooming is something to remember. Even a sizeable back yard can be converted into a charming background for the June ceremony To be practical, June weddings are economical. The white dress may be as simple as you please and can be worn all during the summer Organdy, silk crepe, rayon sheers, voiles, white of all description is suitable—anything but the heavy slipper satin is in good taste for the informal wedding, whether it is held in the house or out-of-doors.

The bouffant skirt, with its suggestion of yesteryear, is adorably becoming to youthful figures. A short veil adds an extra bride-like touch, and the entire outfit can be had for less than the usual going-away gown that girls bent on economy often select

When the wedding is informal, the groom may choose either white flannels, or white washable suit with white shirt, white buckskin shoes, and a striped tie showing a dash of color—preferably blue, if the bride's bouquet has a few blue flowers. The best man wears white flannel trousers and dark blue flannel jacket Or he may reverse this order and wear a white coat and dark trousers, though authorities say the former is preferable.

Groom and best man wear coat flowers, but not too large a bouquet, please. The wedding collation may be served indoors, and need be nothing more than a good fruit punch, dainty sandwiches, and the wedding cake, of which the bride cuts the first slice. Ice cream and coffee, if desired.

I shall be very glad to answer any questions about weddings, June or otherwise. I have a little leaflet on the subject, which may be obtained by sending me a self-addressed, three-cent stamped envelope.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

"Take just as long as you wish," I told Olga.

I remembered so vividly Lillian's gradual realization of Savarin's Oriental pasha possessiveness with his insistence that she give up her career when she should marry him, and of another realization also when Harry Underwood came back into her life, that her love as well as her duty called her back to her erring husband. Robert Savarin, broken-hearted, went away and we heard little more of him until Lillian and I were summoned by the artist's sister, Mrs. Cosgrove, to his deathbed.

He did not detain me long in that deathbed interview, for he had planned everything beforehand in meticulous detail. He wished Lillian and Marion to inherit half of his comfortable fortune, the other half being ample for the needs of his sister and her family. But as he knew that Harry Underwood's jealous pride would effectually prevent Lillian's acceptance of the legacy under ordinary circumstances, and especially while the artist's memory was still fresh, he made a most bizarre request of me. He asked that I permit him to will the fortune unconditionally to me, with only an oral promise that eventually I would turn the bulk of it over to Lillian and Marion, and that if beforehand either of them needed financial assistance, I was to provide it. He also told me that a certain portion of the inheritance was mine personally, but although I did not hurt a dying man by a refusal of his request, I had determined never to touch his legacy, feeling that it all should go to Lillian and Marion.

Once in the years since Robert Savarin's death, I had drawn a sum of money from the legacy, drawn it with the full approval of the dead artist's sister, who, however, made it plain that I alone was the arbiter of the legacy.

When Ronald Brixton, Yale collegian and youthful sweetheart of Lillian's winsome daughter, Marion, faced the stopping of his education, and social disgrace because of the imminent ruin of his broker stepfather, Samuel Brixton, I felt that if ever there was justification for using a part of the legacy it was in coming to the aid of the Brixtons. The loan had been justified. It had put Samuel Brixton upon his feet, and he had repaid the loan in large installments, with interest. I had received one of them but the day before, and it was the sum free to loan Olga.

I had no qualms about lending the money again, or even of giving it permanently to Olga should she need it. Lillian would approve. I was sure, when we should reach the time for me to give an accounting of the trust Robert Savarin had vested in me.

Olga's soft voice brought my reverie to an abrupt end.

"If you're not out of all patience with me, Madge," she said. "I'd like to talk to you, now."

"There's no question of patience," I assured her warmly.

"I think I should like first to tell you that your conjecture as to what I wanted was accurate. I need a loan of money very much. May I tell you why?"

"Not unless you wish," I returned "It is not at all necessary for me to know why you wish it. How much do you wish?"

"That I shall have to ask you," she returned surprisingly.

"But how?"—I stammered.

"That does sound absurd, doesn't it?" she asked. "But I haven't the faintest idea of what I shall need I know nothing of American prices. And—I do not know when I can repay you. I am penniless, you know"

Garden Graph

STALKING THE STALK BORER

When the top portion, leaves and twigs of columbine show signs of wilting, carefully examine the plant for the stalk borer, and then be prepared to stalk it to its lair.

Whereabouts of the borer will be revealed by a neat hole in the stem of the plant. Once the hole leading to the borer's lurking place has been discovered, the borer itself can easily be killed by squirting a few drops of carbon disulphide into the hole with a medicine dropper, as shown in the Garden-Graph. Immediately after injecting the carbon disulphide plug the hole tightly with chewing gum or putty.

The columbine borer is similar to other stalk borers. It is about 1½ inches in length and a salmon brown in color.

Streamline Ankles With Exercise

By MME. QUI VIVE.

Some day, when you are watching the shopping parade trailing through the buy-ways, take a look-see at ankles. It is generally admitted that feminine ankles are bigger but not better. The trim, delicately turned ankle is a rare beauty blessing. The change has been brought about, it is said, by the wearing of low shoes. When women clumped around in high ones, the muscles had support; without it they spread, become shapeless, unless the owner thereof is a devotee of physical culture. With proper exercise, the fibers of the legs remain strong and resilient; they assume normal contour, are altogether pleasing.

Bad posture has a deplorable effect upon the ankles because the body is not balanced Standing with the weight on one foot is a bad habit. Abnormally high heels are a menace, causing the ankle to sway from side to side, an unnatural movement since it was designed to be a one way hinge. It's just as well to know what not to do before starting to do what is necessary to slimmer down. We bring many of our beauty griefs upon ourselves through carelessness, neglect or ignorance.

Massage will wear away adipose tissue that has collected on calves and ankles, but it must be vigorous and continued for weeks. The use of a small rolling pin will dissolve fat cells.

If the legs are of normal contour and only the ankles are to be treated, it is advisable to wear rubber anklets at night. Rubber reduces because it prevents the evaporation of heat, produces perspiration, is a sweating out process When the rubber garments are removed the skin surface should be sponged with cold water frictioned with an ice cube so flabbiness will not result.

Exercises are recommended but the trouble with them is that the suppliciant for a better figure won't keep on long enough. Unless she sees a change almost immediately, she becomes discouraged She should take measurements, be determined to continue her reducing efforts for three or four months. Trim ankles are worth the effort. She must have a regular time for these sessions The early morning hours bring favorable reactions. Late at night won't do. Nobody should exercise when fatigued

Lie on the back on the floor, hands under the buttocks for support. Lift the feet, move them as if you were pedaling a bicycle.

Stand tall, chest up, head balanced, hands on the hips. Lift on the toes, stay on them until you take a deep breath, then down and repeat. The deep breath is to make your cheeks pink and to give proper timing.

Walk tippy-toe whenever you think of it. Take long strides so the interlacing muscles from knees to ankles will be flexed. After ten minutes of these exercises, rub the ankles vigorously with alcohol to make the blood streams sing and dance.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

BY

Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

POSITIVE OR NEGATIVE

Fine bidders in contract keep three purposes in mind. First, they want to find the best declaration for their pair, if possible, a particular suit or No Trump. Second, they want to get the contract as high as the pair's two hands may justify, a most positive consideration in a contest which does not produce game or slam premiums except when contracted for. Third comes a negative, but also vital factor—the importance of not bidding too high, as bidding for two many tricks entails a loss of points instead of a gain.

The third consideration is the reason why experts have strained so to develop methods which will prevent what they call "crowding the bidding" They have sought to work out means which will ascertain the ultimate declaration on hands of ordinary strength while the bidding is still at a low level. That is the reason for what has been named the "one-over-one" principle—the exchange of as much information as possible without pushing the side beyond its depth.

1. ♠ 6 3 ♥ Q J 9 5 4 ♦ 9 7 6 ♣ K 8 6
2. ♠ 6 3 ♥ Q J 9 5 4 ♦ A 7 6 ♣ Q 10 8

With the first of these two hands, you have pretty close to the weakest collection of cards that you would bid opposite a partner who made an opening suit bid of one. Those who follow the one-over-one principle would bid 1-Heart on that after a partner's dealer bid of 1-Diamond, but if he bid 1-Spade, they would bid 1-No Trump, since the hand is too weak to carry the bidding voluntarily to the two level.

With the second of those hands, there is enough strength to bid the heart suit at 1-Heart over 1-Diamond and 2-Hearts over 1-Spade. In fact, that hand would be strong enough for what is called a "free bid," whereas the first one is not.

With the first, you bid at all for just two purposes—maybe the side may find the hand playable at a major suit or No Trumps, either of which produces more points than a minor, and maybe your partner has an extremely strong hand, not quite enough to make a game-guaranteeing two-bid in the first place, but enough to do it with a jump on his next turn if he learns you have a bare bit of strength

In brief, your purpose in bidding this first hand is to "keep it open" and see what your partner wants to do next. But, if an opponent bids before it is your turn, he has done that work for you, and so you have no need to give your partner another chance by bidding yourself. Hence your making a bid after an opponent's overcall is to show him you have at least about the amount of strength in the second hand—a "free bid."

HOROSCOPE

For Tuesday, June 18.

Judging by the lunar transits, this may prove to be a day on which things move at high tempo and with much aggressiveness, if not wholly drastic force. And this with much promise of worthwhile progress and in productive channels of new interest and endeavor. Work with groups, for social or welfare ends, is particularly active and prosperous.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a year of swift action, with matters of fresh interest and new objectives moving into prosperous and progressive fields, especially when in joint operation with groups for welfare or social advancement.

A child born on this day may have a high order of intelligence and creative ability. And while impulsive, tempestuous and critical, yet will have active interest in promoting the advancement and well-being of its fellows.

The value of Tunis as a Mediterranean port was established in 1893 by the digging of a channel 6.2 miles long. The city itself has existed since the Carthaginian epoch.

COLLEGE FLIGHT STUDENTS STEP UP PORT TEMPO

Harrington and Aide Take Up 31 Neophyte Pilots, Seek Another Instructor.

With several Mansfield college students home for their summer vacations enrolled the past week for flight instruction Inspector James R. Harrington and Russell Gledhill, assistant instructor, spent a busy day at Mansfield airport yesterday, taking aloft 31 would-be pilots for training

The enrollment of six new students at the field has set a record number of 65 now taking instructions and has made Mansfield one of the largest civilian training sites in the state The result is that Harrington is seeking another instructor and says he hopes to have the teacher on hand sometime this week

Latest youths listed for flight training include Robert Tawse, Louis Nixon, James Wallace, LeRoy Wittemire, Bruce Scott, and Raymond Richards, Galion.

Seven airplanes are now hangared at the field Tom Jones and Paul Gimbel went to Rural Valley, Pa., the past week and brought back the new Luscombe, two-place cabin ship purchased by the Mansfield Flying club, that Jones had been forced to set down in a hay field last week-end because of inclement weather while en route here from the factory in Trenton N. J.

With traffic on the field at a new high and with CPT students practicing landings and take-offs a list of safety practices and field rules were posted in the hangar the past week.

They restrict students from flying solo farther than seven miles from the airport Chucks are required under the wheels of all ships before motors are started Parked aircraft must be tailed to the wind and chucks placed under the wheels Students soloing are not allowed to fly with dual controls unless accompanied by a CAA representative. Left-hand traffic rules apply when approaching and landing aircraft, and no airplane is permitted to take-off the field when the wind velocity is greater than 20 miles an hour

Two student fliers Dean Gallagher and Theodore Myers, have given up their training at Mansfield airport. Both will entrain for Santa Monica, Calif., this week to go to work for the Douglas Aircraft corporation, one of the nation's largest manufacturers of airplanes They expect, however, to complete their flight instruction on the west coast.

Visitors at the port yesterday included Mr and Mrs Charles Grinnell who were flying a new Luscombe to Seattle, Wash., from the factory at Trenton, N. J. They stopped for a short rest and fuel.

OKLAHOMA CITY —(UP)— Deputy sheriffs arrested a 24-year-old ex-convict in possession of a radio and electric fan he admitted he had stolen from a truck parked near a traveling show.

The prisoner didn't know who owned the articles and no one reported them stolen. Consequently the deputies couldn't file any charges, being unable to prove the loot had been someone's property.

A Paris legend of 150 years standing was shattered by wreckers who raised the canal-boat "Telemaque," sunk in the Seine in the French Revolution. They expected to recover some of the treasure of Marie Antoinette. Actually, not one gold coin was found.
